STATISTICS OF IRELAND.

IRELAND, an island on the N.W. of Europe: lat. from $51^{\circ} 26'$ to $55^{\circ} 21' N.$; long. from $5^{\circ} 20'$ to $10^{\circ} 26' W.$ It is surrounded by the Atlantic on all sides, except the E., where it is separated from Great Britain by St. George's Channel, 47 miles across where narrowest, the Irish Sea, 138 miles, and the Northern Channel, 13 miles. Its shape is that of a rhomboid, the greatest diagonal of which is 302 miles, and the lesser, 210 miles; the greatest length on a meridional line is 225 miles; the greatest and least breadths on parallels of latitude, 174 and 111 miles; comprising an area of 32,509 $\frac{1}{2}$ square miles, or 20,808,271 acres.

COASTS.—The Northern, Western, and Southern coasts are indented with numerous deep and safe bays; the Eastern side presents but few suited for large vessels. Their total number has been estimated at 14 capable of harbouring the largest men-of-war; 14 for frigates; from 30 to 40 for coasting vessels; 25 good summer roadsteads; besides numerous inlets for fishing craft. There were in operation in 1856, 57 coast Lighthouses, and 3 Floating Lights, which are maintained in an efficient state at an expenditure of about £60,000 a year.

THE ISLANDS are numerous but small; total number, 196: the largest are Rathlin and Tory, N.; Achill, Clare, the South Arran Isles, and Valentia, W.; and Whiddy and Cape Clear, S.

SURFACE.—The greater part of the surface is a plain, not strictly level, but mostly interspersed with low hills. The principal mountain groups are, N.E., the Mourne mountains in Down county,—highest, Slieve Donard, 2,796 feet above high sea-level; W., the mountains surrounding Clew Bay in Mayo county,—highest, Mullree, 2,688 feet; S.W., M'Gillicuddy's Reeks in Kerry county,—highest, Carran-Tual, 3,414; E., the Wicklow mountains,—highest, Lugnaquilla, 3,039. The interior of the country is intersected by several lofty ranges, among which the Devil's Bit, Slieve-Bloom, Galteea, Mount Leinster, and Blackstairs, are the most remarkable.

THE RIVERS are numerous: the principal is the Shannon, 159 miles long, from Lough Allen to Limerick, where it expands into an estuary of 45 miles, opening into the Atlantic; it is navigable through nearly the whole of its course. The Suir, Barrow, Nore, Blackwater, Slaney, Boyne, Foyle, Erne, Lee, Bandon, Bann, and Moy, are all navigable to a greater or less extent: smaller rivers, serving chiefly for agricultural and domestic purposes, are to be met with in every district.

THE LAKES, generally termed Loughs, are numerous: the largest, Lough Neagh, in Ulster, covers 98,235 acres; the others more remarkable, are, Loughs Erne, Corrib, Mask, Conn, and the Lakes of Killarney.

CLIMATE.—The climate is temperate and moist; the crops are more frequently injured by excess of moisture than of aridity. Plants which require artificial heat in England, flourish here in the open air; while, owing to the humidity of the atmosphere, many kinds of seeds must be supplied from England or the continent. This peculiarity of climate is not prejudicial to health; the average of life is much the same as in Great Britain; longevity equally common. The prevalent diseases are low fever and consumption. The mean temperature in the N. is 48° Fahrenheit; in the middle, 50° ; and in the S., 52° .

BOTANY.—Ireland once had the name of the Island of Woods, from being covered with forests, and latterly acquired the poetical name of the Emerald Isle, from the perennial brilliancy of its verdure. Its Flora contains some rare varieties; the Arbutus unedo flourishes in Killarney; varieties of saxifrage and of ferns are found in the mountains of Kerry; Connemara, Benbulbin mountain in Sligo, and Antrim county, abound in scarce Alpine plants; rare and hitherto unknown species of algae have been discovered on various parts of the coast.

ZOOLOGY.—The elk, or moose deer, was a native of the country; its bones have been found in several places: wolves were once so numerous that a price was set upon them, and the Irish wolf-dog kept for hunting them. Venomous animals are unknown; the moisture of the climate is destructive to them. The surrounding seas abound with fish, both round and flat; the sun-fish frequents the western coast; whales visit it occasionally; seals are common about the precipitous headlands; many kinds of shell-fish are taken along the shore.

GEOLOGY.—The geological structure of Ireland has this striking peculiarity, that most of the great mountain ranges are near the coast, while the central portion is an almost uniform plain, varied only by low hills. The prevailing formations are limestone, granite, mica-slate, clay-slate, old red sandstone, yellow sandstone, and basalt or trap. The limestone extends over the central plain, 120 miles E. and W., from Dublin to Galway Bay, and 120 miles N. and S. Its greatest elevation is about 300 feet, which is the height of the summit levels of the canals that traverse it. The principal tracts of granite are those of Wicklow, Galway, Newry, and Donegal. The mica-slate of Leinster is confined to a narrow fringe, edging the granitic region of the province; in Donegal and Galway it spreads over large tracts. The clay-slate is among the most important rocks, both for extent of area and valuable mineral deposits. The counties of Wexford, Louth, Waterford, Cork, and Kerry, are mostly formed of it. In the north it is contained in the district bounded by a line from Longford to Drogheda, eastward, and to Donaghadee, north-eastward. At Kingscourt, Carrickmacross, and Cavan, the clay-slate dips and forms a basin, in which the limestone and coal formations are deposited. Slate is quarried extensively at Killaloe and Westport, in Clare, and in Wicklow. The old red sandstone is chiefly developed in the south; it forms the greater part of Cork and Waterford counties, and of the inland mountain ranges of Knockmeledon, Comeragh, and the Galtees; it shows itself also in several places in Westmeath, Longford, and Leitrim. A large tract of old red and yellow sandstone forms the sea-coast at Killaloe, skirts Loughs Conn and Cullen, and reaches the Atlantic at Westport. An extensive tract in Fermanagh and Tyrone from Lough Erne to Cookstown has this rock for its basis. It is also found in patches in Antrim, Derry, and Tyrone. Crystallized gypsum occurs in Derry and Antrim, and selenite at Benbulbin. Uncrystallized gypsum is raised in large quantities at Carrickmacross. The yellow sandstone usually accompanies the red, and rests upon it. The basalt or trap occupies a very limited area, being confined almost exclusively to the N.E. portion of the island, forming the substratum of the county of Antrim and of some portions of Derry and Armagh.

MINES.—The principal minerals are coal, iron, copper, lead, and gold. The coal fields are seven in number: one in Leinster, occupying large portions of Kilkenny and Queen's counties, with a small part of Carlow; two in Munster, one in Tipperary, bordering on that of Kilkenny, the other spread over large portions of Clare, Limerick, Cork, and Kerry counties, being the most extensive development of the coal strata in the British empire. All these beds lie S. of Dublin, and yield only stone coal, or anthracite, which burns without flame. The remaining fields, which lie to the N. of Dublin, are formed of bituminous or flaming coal. Of the northern coal-fields, three are in Ulster,—one at Coal Island, near Dungannon; the second in the northern extremity of Antrim county; and the third in Monaghan. They are all small: the narrowness of the seams of coal renders the last named almost valueless. The Connaught coal field extends over portions of Roscommon, Sligo, Leitrim, and Cavan counties. The total quantity of coal and culm raised in Ireland in 1855 is estimated at 145,620 tons. Besides the stores of fuel applicable to manufacturing and domestic uses which lie embedded in the coal fields, Ireland enjoys two others, lignite, and turf or peat. Lignite, an intermediate species of fuel between wood and coal, is found in dense strata encompassing the southern half of Lough Neagh. The total area of turf bog is estimated at 2,850,000 acres, nearly one-seventh of the surface of the island. Of this quantity, 1,576,000 acres are flat bog, spread over the central portions of the great limestone plain; the remaining 1,254,000 are mountain bog, chiefly scattered over the hilly districts near the coast.

Iron ore is found in all the localities of coal, and was largely manufactured while timber for fuel was abundant. Lately, the efforts to carry on the manufacture have not been profitable.

The copper mines are distributed throughout the clay-slate districts in a great number of localities. The following table gives the quantity of copper ore produced by Irish mines, and sold by public ticketings at Swansea, in the years 1854 and 1855:—

Lead is more extensively diffused through Ireland than copper. The granitic district of Wicklow contains numerous veins; the principal are those of Glendalough, Glenmalur, Glendasane or Lugganure, and Ballycorus. The clay-slate districts also yield numerous indications of this metal, but few of the mines have proved profitable.

The following table gives the working of the principal lead mines for 1854–55:—

Tin stone has been found in the auriferous soil of Wicklow, but no veins or working deposits have been discovered. Other minerals, useful in manufactures and the arts, and found in quantities in various parts of the country, are manganese, antimony, zinc, nickel, tin, sulphur ores (of which about 80,000 tons are annually exported from the Arklow district), alum, clays of various kinds, building stone, marble, flags, and roofing slates. Salt rock has latterly been worked near Carrickfergus, and the quality is said to be superior to the Cheshire rock-salt, and the present annual produce is about 20,000 tons.

POLITICAL, ECCLESIASTICAL, JUDICIAL, FISCAL, AND MILITARY DIVISIONS OF THE COUNTRY.

POLITICAL DIVISIONS.—The most ancient political division of Ireland was into two portions, called Leath Conn, N., and Leath Mogha, S., separated from each other by a line drawn westward from Dublin to Galway. Subsequently, the country was divided into the five kingdoms of Meath, central; Leinster, S.E.; Munster, S.W.; Ulster, N.; and Connaught, W. It is now divided into the four provinces of Leinster, Munster, Ulster, and Connaught; Meath being merged into Leinster and Ulster. These are subdivided into 32 counties, besides the eight small exempt jurisdictions of Dublin, Cork, Kilkenny, Limerick, Waterford, Carrickfergus, Drogheda, and Galway; the first five of which are styled counties of cities, the remaining three, counties of towns. The counties are divided into 316 baronies, and again into 2,422 parishes. The smallest political divisions are called townlands, and in some parts, ploughlands. Irrespective of those divisions the whole of the country is divided, under the Poor Law Act, into 163 unions, subdivided into 3,439 electoral divisions.

Government.—The Executive Government is vested in the Lord Lieutenant, assisted by a Privy Council, appointed by the Crown and indefinite in number, the Bishop of Meath being always one, ex-officio; and by a Chief Secretary, a member of the House of Commons. In the absence or vacancy of the Lord Lieutenant, his place is supplied by Lords Justices, who generally are the Primate or the Archbishop of Dublin, the Lord Chancellor, and the Commander of the Forces. Each county is in charge of a Lieutenant, generally a peer, an indefinite number of Deputy Lieutenants and Magistrates, who act gratuitously, and one or more Resident paid Magistrates, all appointed by the Crown, during pleasure. The counties of cities and towns, and the boroughs, are governed by their own magistrates.

Representation.—The country is represented in the Imperial Parliament by 4 Spiritual and 28 Temporal Peers and 105 Commoners; of which latter class 64 represent the 32 counties, 2 the University, 12 the cities and towns of Dublin, Cork, Limerick, Waterford, Belfast, and Galway; and 27 the boroughs. The Act 13 & 14 Vic. cap. 69, was passed in 1850 to amend the representation; and in addition to those persons previously qualified to register and vote in county elections, occupiers of any tenements rated in the last poor rate at a net annual value of £12 and upwards, are entitled to vote in elections for counties, also owners of certain estates of the rated net annual value of £5 (§ 2). In boroughs, occupiers rated in the last poor rate at £8 and upwards are entitled to vote, subject to certain limitations (§ 5). By this Act the polling at contested elections is to continue in counties for two days only, and in cities and boroughs for one day only. The number of electors on the register of 1852–53 was 179,483, i.e., 149,854 in the counties, and 29,634 in the cities and boroughs.

Corporations.—By the Municipal Reform Act, 3 & 4 Vic., cap. 118, 11 of the principal towns, each containing upwards of 12,000 inhabitants, are divided into wards, and are governed by a council consisting of a chief magistrate called Mayor, Sovereign, Provost, or Portreve—that of Dublin styled Lord Mayor—and a certain number of Aldermen and Councillors for each ward; all of whom, by the same Act, are elected by the inhabitants entitled to vote in right of their property. The total number of existing Corporations is 95, possessing an income of about £62,000 per annum. Independently of the towns with Corporations, the Act of 9 Geo. IV., cap. 82, enables every city and town to elect commissioners to superintend the lighting, paving, and cleansing of their respective districts. In 1853, commissioners were appointed under this Act in 55 towns; but another statute, the Towns' Improvement Act, 17 & 18 Vic., c. 103, was passed in 1854, which supercedes the operation of the Act of 9 Geo. IV. in each town after the first election of commissioners under the new Act. The following is a list of those towns the inhabitants of which have availed themselves of the provisions of the "Towns' Improvement Act," and the dates fixed by the Lord Lieutenant for the commencement of its operation in each place:—

The Constabulary.—The first regular police force established throughout Ireland was originated by the Act 54 Geo. III., cap. 131, passed in 1814—"To provide for the better execution of the Laws in Ireland, by appointing Superintending Magistrates and additional Constables in Counties, in certain cases." Other Acts followed, but all were consolidated or repealed by the 6th Wm. IV., cap. 13, passed in 1836. The reserve force was established in 1839, by the Act 2 & 3 Vic., cap. 75. Originally the expense was defrayed partly by Grand Jury presentments, and partly out of the Consolidated Fund; but the Act 9 & 10 Vic., cap. 97, passed in 1846, provides that the whole expense shall be borne by the Consolidated Fund, except a moiety of the cost of additional Constabulary Force applied for by the Magistrates of any county or district, or of the reserve force when employed therein, or of an increased force stationed there by the Lord Lieutenant. The Act 6 Wm. IV., cap. 13, likewise authorized the Lord Lieutenant to appoint resident Stipendiary Magistrates, to act in disturbed districts, or in districts where, owing to the absence or non-residence of the local Magistrates, or for any other sufficient cause, it should appear to be expedient. The Constabulary Force consists of an Inspector-General, 2 Deputy Inspectors-General, 2 Assistant Inspectors-General, a Receiver, Paymaster, Surgeon, Veterinary Surgeon, 35 County Inspectors, 251 Sub-Inspectors, 319 Head-Constables, 2,075 Constables, and 9,110 Sub-Constables; total, 11,798, with 348 horses, whose maintenance in 1855 amounted to £644,491, including the expense of 71 Stipendiary Magistrates, whose annual salaries are—7 at £500, 1 at £461 10s. 9d., 56 at £400, and 7 at £300, with extra allowances for clerks and stationery, and in some cases for lodging, forage, travelling expenses, and absences at a distance from head-quarters. The proportion of the expense of the force charged on the Consolidated Fund in 1855, was £622,804; and on the counties, cities, and towns of Ireland, £21,687.

The Revenue Police, established for the suppression of illicit distillation, consists of 1 Chief Inspector, 1 Inspector, 9 Second Inspectors, 11 Sub-Inspectors, 66 Lieutenants, 22 Sub-Officers, 66 Sergeants, and 1,020 men. The amount voted for the expense of the force for 1856 was £63,025.

The Dublin Metropolitan Police (established in 1836, by the Act 6 & 7 Wm. IV., cap. 29) consists of 7 Superintendents, 24 Inspectors, 100 Sergeants, 1,000 Constables, 20 Candidates in training; total, 1,151. The annual expense of the force and of the Divisional Police offices is £75,800. The income arises from £21,600 police rate; £7,200 from hackney carriage tax, drivers' licences, &c.; £4,615 from pawnbrokers' licences; £500 from publicans' certificates; £3,200 from fees, fines, &c.; and £685 from incidental sources; with a Parliamentary grant of £35,000. The salaries of the two Commissioners of Police, £800 each, are paid out of the Consolidated Fund, and are not a charge on the police establishment.

ECCLIASTICAL DIVISIONS.—The arrangements adopted by the Established Church, the Roman Catholics, Presbyterians, and other Dissenters, are given under the head ECCLIASTICAL DIRECTORY. The numbers in the principal religious denominations, as ascertained by the Commissioners of Public Instruction in 1834, were—

ESTABLISHED CHURCH.—Previously to the Church Temporalities Act, 3 & 4 Wm. IV., cap. 37, the country was divided for Ecclesiastical purposes into Four Archbishops, nearly identical with the Four Civil Provinces, but taking their names from the cities which were the seats of the Sees. By that Act the Archbishops of Cashel and Tuam were reduced to Bishops, and the whole of Ireland divided into Two Provinces, by a line drawn from the north of Dublin county to the south of Galway bay, and the Bishops were reduced to Ten.

The revenues of the suppressed bishoprics, together with those of suspended dignities and benefices, and disappropriated tithes, were vested by the Church Temporalities Act in the Board of Ecclesiastical Commissioners, to be applied by them to the erection and repairs of churches, to the providing for the church expenses which had been defrayed by vestry rates, and to other ecclesiastical purposes. The revenues of the suppressed sees were, in the three years ending 1st August, 1853, 1854, and 1855, as follows:—

By the decease, in 1853, of the late Bishop of Derry, an additional sum of £2,000 per annum became vested in the Commissioners' funds; and on the next avoidance of the see of Armagh, a further income of £4,500 will accrue. The sales already made of perpetuities of church estates vested in the Commissioners have produced upwards of £269,152, including £61,833 1s. invested in mortgages; the value of the whole perpetuities, if sold, is estimated at £1,200,000. The following are the amounts received from sales in each year ended 31st July, 1834 to 1855:—

In 1855, under the provisions of the Church Temporalities Act, £1,762 9s. 1d. was paid to Curates in the City of Dublin, in lieu of the maintenance heretofore provided by assessments; £8,930 9s. 3d. to the Incumbents hitherto entitled to receive Ministers' Money, charged on houses in Dublin and other towns in Ireland, under the Act of Charles II.; £3,916 16s. to Vicars-choral and Curates of suspended Benefices; £159 5s. 10d. to Diocesan Schoolmasters; and £1,823 8s. 9d. in augmentation of small Benefices, exclusive of £3,982 17s. 4d. for augmentation of poor Livings, under Primate Boutler's bequest.

The sum received under the head of tax, on bishoprics and benefices, amounted to £12,218 12s. 10d. in 1855. This yearly tax is imposed, by the Church Temporalities Act, on all benefices and dignities whose net annual value exceeds £300, graduated according to the following scale:—

Value of Benefice.		Charge per cent.	Value of Benefice.		Charge per cent.	Value of Benefice.		Charge per cent.
Exceeding.	And not exceeding.		Exceeding.	And not exceeding.		Exceeding.	And not exceeding.

325	335	3 5 0	365	375	4 5 0	405	415	5 2 6

The rate of charge increases by 2s. 6d. per cent. on every additional £10 above £405. All Benefices exceeding £1,195 are taxed at the rate of £15 per cent. The yearly tax imposed on all Bishoprics is graduated as follows: Where the yearly value shall not exceed £4,000, 5 per cent.; not exceeding £6,000, 7 per cent.; not exceeding £8,000, 10 per cent.; and not exceeding £10,000, 12 per cent. In lieu of tax, the Archbishopric of Armagh is to pay to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners an annual sum of £4,500; and the See of Derry to pay £6,160.

The following account of the gross and net revenues of the sees of the archbishops and bishops, with the charges and deductions to which such revenues are subject, is taken from a Return to the House of Lords (No. 13, 1854):—

The total amount of tithe-rent charge payable to Ecclesiastical persons, Bishops, Deans, Chapters, Incumbents of Benefices, and the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, is £401,114. The rental of Ireland, as estimated by the valuers under the Poor-Law Act, is £11,923,459 5s. 5d., and this rental being about a third part of the estimated value of the annual produce of the land, it would appear that the tithe-rent charge possessed by Ecclesiastical persons is less than a hundredth part of the annual produce of the soil. Lay impropriators possess tithe-rent charge to the amount of £81,659 per annum.

The Additional Curates' Fund Society was founded in 1838, for the purpose of making provision for additional clergymen in parishes with insufficient incomes, but requiring additional superintendence. The income of the Society averages £2,000 per annum, and about £1,600 is annually expended in curates' salaries.

ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH.—The Roman Catholic Hierarchy consists of four Archbishops, whose Sees are in Armagh, Dublin, Cashel, and Tuam, and 24 Bishops. The Bishops are nominated by the Pope, generally out of a list of names submitted to him by the Bishops of the Province and the Clergy of the vacant Diocese. In case of expected incapacity from age or infirmity, the Bishop names a coadjutor, who is usually confirmed by the Pope. Every Diocese has a Dean and an Archdeacon, the former appointed by the Cardinal Protector at Rome, the latter by the Bishop; but these dignities are without jurisdiction or emolument. The whole of the Clergy are supported solely by the voluntary contributions of their flocks. The Episcopal emoluments arise from the parish in which the Bishop officiates, from marriage licences, and from the cathedralium, an annual sum varying from £2 to £10, paid by each Incumbent in the Diocese. The parochial Clergy are nominated exclusively by the Bishop. The number of Priests in Ireland in 1854 was 2,291, of whom 1,222 were educated at Maynooth College. Their incomes arise from fees on marriages, baptisms, and deaths, on Easter and Christmas dues, and from incidental voluntary contributions, either in money or labour. All the places of public worship are built by subscriptions. There are numerous monasteries and convents; the latter are supported partly by sums, usually from £300 to £500, paid by those who take the vows in them, and partly by the fees for the education of the daughters of respectable Roman Catholics. The Friars and Nuns also devote themselves to the gratuitous education of the children of the poor. Candidates for clerical ordination, formerly under the necessity of obtaining their education in continental colleges, are now educated at home; the principal clerical colleges are those of St. Patrick, Maynooth, supported by grants of public money and by pensions from the students, and Carlow and St. Jarlath's, Tuam, by voluntary contributions.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.—The Presbyterians, who are found chiefly in Ulster, are formed into Congregations, each of which is under the ecclesiastical government of a court called a Session, consisting of the Minister and Elders of the Congregation. An indefinite number of the Ministers of these Congregations, with a Lay Elder for each, constitutes a Presbytery, which has the charge of the Congregations represented in it. Delegates from each of these Presbyteries, consisting of all the Ministers, with a Lay Elder for each, constitute the General Assembly, which is presided over by a Moderator chosen annually, and regulates the Ecclesiastical concerns of the Body. The first Presbytery in Ireland was formed at Carrickfergus in 1642, and gave rise to the Synod of Ulster. The Presbyterian Synod of Munster was formed about 1660. The Presbytery of Autrim separated from the Synod of Ulster in 1727, and the Remonstrant Synod in 1829. A number of Seceders formed themselves into the Secession Synod of Ireland about 1780. In 1840 the General and Secession Synods having united, assumed the name of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Ireland, comprising in 1856, 510 Congregations, arranged under 37 Presbyteries. The Ministers are supported by voluntary contributions, the rents of seats or pews, and the Regium Donum, or Royal Gift, first granted in 1672 by Charles II., who gave £600 of "secret service money" to be distributed in equal portions among them annually. The grant was discontinued towards the close of his reign and during that of James II., but was renewed by William III., who augmented it to £1,200 a year. In 1784 the amount was increased to £2,200; in 1792 to £5,000; and in 1803 a classification was made according to the number of families in each Congregation and the amount of the Minister's voluntary stipend, by which those of the 1st class received £100 annually; of the 2nd, £75; and of the 3rd, £50. In 1831 the system of classification was altered, and 44 ministers now receive £100 each, and 485 £75 each per annum, late Irish currency. As the ministers in the £100 class die, their successors will only receive £75 each. The amount paid to the ministers of the General Assembly from the Parliamentary Grant in 1853, was £33,661, exclusive of the annual salary of £320 per annum paid to the Agent to the Assembly.

Remonstrant Synod of Ulster.—This Synod was formed in May, 1830, in consequence of the separation of seventeen Ministers, with their Congregations, from the General Synod of Ulster, on the ground that, contrary to its usages and code of discipline, it required from its members in 1827 and 1828, submission to certain doctrinal tests and overtures of human invention. There are 4 Presbyteries and 27 congregations in this Synod. The amount of the annual Parliamentary Grant paid to the ministers in 1853, was £1,996, exclusive of the Agent's salary of £230.

The Reformed Presbyterian Synod of Ireland, consisting of 4 Presbyteries and 25 Congregations, is unconnected with the General Assembly, and does not participate in the Requiem Donum.

United Presbytery or Synod of Munster.—This Body was formed in 1809 by the junction of the Southern Presbytery of Dublin with the Presbytery of Munster, and is one of the three non-subscribing Presbyterian Bodies of Ireland, the other two being the Presbytery of Antrim (now consisting of 11 congregations) and the Remonstrant Synod of Ulster. A few years ago these three Bodies united to form the "General Non-Subscribing Presbyterian Association of Ireland," for the promotion of their common principles, the right of private judgment, and non-subscription to creeds and confessions of faith. The General Association meets triennially for these objects, while the three Bodies of which it is composed retain their respective names and independent existence, being governed by their own rules and regulations. From the annual Parliamentary Grant in 1853, the Synod of Munster received £937, and the Presbytery of Antrim, £900.

METHODIST CHURCH.—The Methodist body was founded by the Rev. John Wesley, in 1739. The ministers are itinerant, three years being the longest period they can remain in one place. Two are generally appointed to a Circuit, which comprises several Congregations; and they are assisted by lay preachers, leaders, and prayer leaders. Out of these is formed the leaders' meeting, at which the ministers attend, one of them, called the Superintendent, presiding; and this board, which meets weekly, manages the affairs of the circuit. A number of circuits forms a District. The Conference, composed exclusively of ministers, meets annually, and is the supreme court; but all financial matters are arranged by committees, one-half of each being laymen. A Theological Institution, having branches at Richmond and Didsbury, in England, has lately been established for the education of candidates for the ministry, a proportionate number being admitted from Ireland. The Wesleyan body in the United Kingdom forms one connexion, the President of the British Conference being also President of the Irish one. The number of ministers, including supernumerary and supernumerary ministers in Great Britain is 1,182; in Ireland, 155; number of members in Great Britain, 273,478; in Ireland, 18,749. The number of ministers on foreign stations, 279, members, 69,079; making a total of 361,306 members of the Wesleyan Methodist Society; of the Primitive Methodist Society there are 8,763 members in Ireland.

BAPTIST CHURCH.—Baptist congregations were founded in Dublin and some other parts of the country about the years 1650-3; but as they gradually declined in influence and in active exertion, a society was formed in London in 1814, "to employ itinerants in Ireland, to establish schools, and to distribute Bibles and tracts, gratuitously, or at reduced prices." At present upwards of 2,000 children are on its school rolls.

JUDICIAL DIVISIONS.—The Judicial Establishment consists of the Chancellor, the Lord Justice of the Court of Appeal in Chancery, the Master of the Rolls, four Judges in each of the courts of Queen's Bench, Common Pleas, and Exchequer, those of the Exchequer being styled Barons; an Assistant Barrister for each county, a Bankrupt court with two Judges, one Commissioner of the Insolvents' court, the Judges of the Prerogative court and of the Admiralty. The superior courts are held in Dublin; their terms of sisting are, Hilary, Easter, Trinity, and Michaelmas. Two of the Judges hold Assizes for criminal and civil pleas, in each county, in spring and summer every year, for which purpose the country is divided into six Circuits—HOME, 6 counties, Meath, Westmeath, King's, Queen's, Carlow, Kildare; NORTH-EAST, 5, Louth with Drogheda, Down, Antrim with Carrickfergus, Armagh, Monaghan; NORTH-WEST, 6, Longford, Cavan, Fermanagh, Tyrone, Donegal, Londonderry county and city; LEINSTER, 5, Wicklow, Wexford, Waterford county and city, Kilkenny county and city, Tipperary, E. and W. Ridings; MUNSTER, 4, Clare, Limerick county and city, Kerry, Cork county and city; CONNAUGHT, 5, Roscommon, Leitrim, Sligo, Mayo, Galway county and town. Two of the Judges also hold a general Gaol Delivery for Dublin every six weeks.

The number of cases tried in the criminal court at the Quarter Sessions in 1845 was 7,500; in 1848, 16,446; in 1853, 12,146 cases were tried, and the number of convictions was 6,928.

There are 601 Petty Sessions Courts in Ireland. The number of criminal and civil cases tried in each of the three years 1842-3-4, was 816, 682, 753. The amount of fees averages about £16,000.

There are 34 County PRISONS, two each in Kildare and Tipperary; 10 City or Town Prisons, and 115 Bridewells; 27 of the County Prisons have Tread Mills. The cost of diet of the prisoners averaged in 1852, 7½d. per head per day; and in 1854, 11½d. The total expense of the County, City, and Town Gaols was, in 1845, £75,658; in 1850, £102,563; in 1851, £95,483; in 1852, £86,868; in 1853, £86,666; in 1854, £89,992; and in 1855, £82,736. The number of prisoners confined in the gaols on 1st January 1853, was 7,604; in 1854, 5,755; in 1855, 5,080; and in 1856, 3,661.

FISCAL DIVISIONS.—The country is divided for the collection of the Revenue, according to different arrangements in the Customs, Excise, Stamp, and Post Office departments.

MILITARY DIVISIONS.—The Staff of Ireland consists of the departments of Commander of the Forces, Adjutant-General, and Quartermaster-General; under which are those of the Judge-Advocate-General and Medical Director-General. The military divisions are according to the following districts:—

FOR GENERAL SERVICE.—Dublin, or Northern District, Dublin; Cork, or South-Western District, Cork; Curragh, or South-Eastern District, Curragh of Kildare.

FOR RECRUITING SERVICE.—Northern District, Head Quarters, Belfast; Centre District, Dublin; Southern District, Cork.

The number of troops (rank and file) stationed in Ireland at different periods was—

POPULATION.—CENSUS OF 1851.

Population.—The original inhabitants of the island were the Celts, who have been intermixed in the south with the Milesian tribes from Spain; in the maritime districts of the east and south-east, with the Danes, who were followed by the Anglo-Normans; and in the north with the Scotch, who settled there in great numbers in the reign of James I.; subsequently, small colonies of French emigrants settled in Dublin, the Queen's county, and Lisburn in Antrim; some Germans, called Palatines, in Tipperary.

The greater portion of this extraordinary decrease in the density of the population took place in the rural districts, as a result of the famine and emigration of 1845 and following years. In the whole of Ireland, there has been a diminution of 53 persons to the square mile of the entire area, and of 104 to the square mile of arable land. The decrease in Connaught was so high as 60 persons to the square mile of the entire area, and 145 to the square mile of arable land; in Ulster, 48 to the square mile of the total area, and 126 to the square mile of arable land; in Munster, the decrease was to the square mile of the entire area, 57, and to each square mile of the arable land, 114; and the population of the province of Leinster decreased by 45 persons for every square mile of its general area, and by 58 for the square mile of arable land.

* The increase in the united population of the county and city of Dublin is equal to 91 persons to the square mile.

According to the present returns, as well as upon all other occasions when investigations as to the sanitary condition of particular localities have been instituted, the town of Drogheda has been found to present the lowest duration of life, or the earliest point in the applotment at which the deaths recorded divide into nearly equal portions. This point is at the most advanced period of life in the county and city of Londonderry, where it is from the twenty-ninth to the thirtieth year of age—and especially above and below the average are the city of Cork, Belfast town, and Limerick city, and the counties of Kerry and Mayo, on the one hand, the highest of which did not exceed a point between 13 and 14; and on the other, the counties of Carlow, Kilkenny, Down, Monaghan, and Tyrone, at which the medium point was between 28 and 29 years of age.

* There were 11,221 Deaths returned from Workhouses, in which the Seasons could not be stated; the summary under this head is therefore unavoidably deficient that amount.

In the absence of a general registration of births and deaths, and owing to the remarkable circumstances of the country during a portion of the period included in this inquiry, the Census Commissioners state that they were unable to afford, with any degree of certainty, the annual rates of mortality for this portion of the United Kingdom. The only means of approximation to this subject is that arrived at by the following calculation:—The absolute population enumerated on the 30th of March, 1851, was 6,552,385; to this add 46,261 deaths recorded for the three months in that year, and also 44,871 persons who emigrated; subtract from the total the estimated births of the previous three months, by which means we find that 6,589,940 persons should have been in Ireland upon the 1st of January in that year. Supposing, then, the annual increase on the latter number by the excess of births over deaths to be similar to that in England, we should have had 6,656,076 at the end of the year; and as the deaths for the first three months of the year may be estimated at about one-third of the whole, the mortality for the entire year would be 138,783, or about 1 in 48. But this, after all, is only an approach to the truth, because we are unable to arrive at the proportion of the children returned as having died under three months old in the year 1851, who were also born in that year.

† Deaths from Cholera, in Temporary Hospitals, not specified in Hospital Returns, and included in those for Counties.

The above Table was compiled on the assumption that nine-tenths of the emigration from Liverpool to North America, and that all the emigration from Irish Ports, consisted of Irish, to which is added the number of Irish emigrants conveyed from London and Plymouth in ships chartered by the Emigration Commissioners. During the period from 1841 to 1845 no record was kept of the Irish emigrants who embarked at London or Plymouth. The total emigration, however, amounted to only 2,761.

TABLE XVII.—NUMBER of EMIGRANTS who left each County in Ireland, from the 1st of May, 1851, to the 31st of December, 1855, stating it to be their intention not to return, compiled from Accounts taken at the several Irish Ports.

Applying the rates of 1 birth to every 31, and 1 death to every 45 persons living, being the average in England and Wales, to the population of this country in 1841, and assuming that the emigration was equal to the immigration, we find that the population on the 30th of March, 1851, would have probably numbered 9,018,799, instead of 6,552,385; and that, consequently, the loss of population between 1841 and 1851 may be computed at the enormous amount of 2,466,414 persons.

The Births, Deaths, and Emigration for 1851, are given for nine months only, viz. :—from 1st April to 31st December. † According to the Census.

Decline of the population in Ireland.—The people of Ireland in 1851 proved to be 1,622,739 less numerous than in 1841, a diminution commonly attributed to the famine consequent on the potato failure in 1845 and subsequent years. The mortality of that period having been concentrated in workhouses and temporary hospitals, and having ravaged some portions of the country, in which disease prevailed with extraordinary virulence, the great loss of population has been usually accounted for by estimating the deaths generally according to their extent in the severely visited localities; but the Mortality Returns, founded on the Census of 1851, show that the deaths from 1841 were not, in the aggregate, excessive. In the emigration to America, migration to Great Britain, and the decrease of births, the causes of decline are to be found.

Of the children living in 1841 and 1851, the Census of each period supplies the following totals of the number born within twelve months preceding:—

	1841.	1851.
Leinster, . . .	46,343	34,451
Munster, . . .	61,389	34,653
Ulster, . . .	57,466	42,875
Connaught, . . .	37,268	20,613
	202,466	132,592

The decrease of children living in 1851, aged from one month to a year, was, as compared with the enumeration of 1841, so much as 69,874; and the decline in the number of births was operating from 1841.

Of the children living in 1841 and 1851, aged from twelve months to nine years, the Census Reports contain the following enumerations:—

Until 1847, emigration did not materially reduce the population. In that year 215,444 persons emigrated to America and the Colonies, being more than double the number of the emigrants in 1846. In the ten years, from June, 1841, to March, 1851, there emigrated 1,240,737 persons, which materially lessened the number of children to be enumerated in 1851; but this only in part accounts for the great diminution of births after 1841.

The Census Report for 1851 contains a Table showing that if births had taken place in the ratio of 1 to 31 of the population, annually, as in England (without an emigration), the number of children born in Ireland from 1841 to 1851 would have been 2,711,814; and the population in the latter year would have been 9,018,799, instead of 6,552,385. In this calculation, allowance is made for 1,868,139 deaths; estimating the mortality in the ratio of 1 to 45 of the population in each year; and the births would have thus exceeded the deaths by 843,675.

The actual number of deaths from 1841 to 1851, as ascertained in making the Census, amounted to 1,361,051, and the deaths from extraordinary causes did not amount to one-third of this total, thus:—

Deaths from Fever, ...	222,029
Cholera, ...	33,989
Dysentery and Diarrhoea, ...	134,555
Starvation, ...	21,770
Total, ...	414,343

A large proportion of the deaths from such causes occurred in the years of famine, and the mortality in those years was, therefore, excessive; but the total for ten years is not in excess of the ordinary ratio of deaths, even in a declining population, taking the mean of the numbers of the people in 1841 and 1851.

The causes of decline must be sought for in the consequences of the transitions which have been undergone by the labouring population employed in agriculture, manufactures, and common trades. Spread over the surface of the country, this population multiplied rapidly; but removed from their old locations, and dependent for subsistence wholly on the demand for labour, their circumstances have become unfavourable to the growth of population.

It appears that the greatest diminution in the number of the labouring people has taken place in the following counties:—Monaghan, 117 to the square mile; Cavan, 93; Roscommon, 84; Longford, 78; Sligo, 73; Cork, 71; Armagh and Leitrim, each 70. Antrim lost only 7 to the square mile; Donegal lost 22; Wexford, 24; Kildare, 29; Kerry, 30; Down and Wicklow, each 34; Londonderry, 37; and Westmeath, 42. The other counties lost population in the proportion of 45 to 65 for each square mile.

The total number of persons in Ireland on 31st March, 1851, was 6,552,386; of whom 3,190,630 were males, and 3,361,756 females. The population returned by the Census Commissioners in 1841 amounted to 8,175,124; of whom 4,019,576 were males, and 4,155,548 females: so that from the 6th of June, 1841, to the 31st March, 1851, a period of 9 years and 298 days, there has been a diminution in the number of the people of 1,621,378 persons, or 19.82 per cent.; 828,046, or 20.37 per cent. of these were males, and 793,792, or 19 per cent. females.

Registration of Marriages.—The Act of 7 and 8 Vic., c. 81, for the Registration of Marriages in Ireland, came into operation in 1845. The agency employed throughout the country for carrying the Act into effect consists of the clergy of the Established Church, and of those of the several descriptions of Dissenters, of the Registering Officers of the Society of Friends, of the Secretaries of the Jewish Synagogues, and of 130 Registrars appointed under the Act, each of whom is superintendent of a registration district. Roman Catholic marriages, the most numerous, are not registered.

The Census Commissioners give the following table of the Number of Marriages in each year, from 1841 to 1850, as taken from the Family Returns:—

These numbers are manifestly deficient, and the Census Commissioners remark that information on this subject cannot be obtained with any approach to accuracy, and urge the necessity of a general measure for the registration of the whole of the marriages solemnized in Ireland, as well as of the births and deaths of the entire population.

EDUCATION.

The Official Returns exhibiting the number of the population receiving instruction in public schools give the following results. The numbers stated in 1824 and 1834 are those on the rolls of the schools; the others, those in actual attendance:—

The institutions for communicating instruction are, the University of Dublin, Trinity College; the Queen's Colleges of Belfast, Cork, and Galway, in connexion with the Queen's University in Ireland (established in 1850); the College of St. Columba, near Dublin; the General Assembly's College, Belfast; the Belfast Academical Institution; the Roman Catholic Colleges of St. Patrick, Maynooth; St. Jarlath's, Tuam; St. Patrick's, Carlow; Armagh, and Thurles; St. Kyran's, Kilkenny; Clongowes, Clane; and the Missionary College of All Hallows, Drumcondra, near Dublin; endowed classical schools, endowed mercantile schools, parochial schools, National Education schools, Church Education schools, Christian Brothers' schools, and Sunday schools.

The University of Dublin is a College incorporated by Charter or Letters Patent, 34 Eliz. (1591), as "The Mother of an University." The dissolved monastery of All Hallows in Hoggins', now College Green, (then in the eastern suburbs of the city,) was given by the Corporation of Dublin as a site upon which to build it.

In the Charter of Foundation (34 Eliz.) the Queen nominated one provost, three fellows, nomine plurium, and three scholars, nomine plurium, to constitute with their successors for ever, a body corporate and politic, under the name of The Provost, Fellows, and Scholars of the Holy and Undivided Trinity of Queen Elizabeth, near Dublin. The number of the Corporation has been increased from time to time, and at present consists of a provost, seven senior fellows, twenty-eight junior fellows, and seventy scholars. The system of instruction is superintended by the fellows both senior and junior, together with a number of professors in the various departments of science and literature. A vacancy among the fellows is filled up by the provost and a select number of the fellows, after a strict examination for four days in metaphysics, mathematics, natural philosophy, ethics, history, chronology, Latin, Greek, and Hebrew. They hold their situation during life, unless they choose to accept of the incumbency of one of the thirty-two benefices now at the disposal of the College. Until the year 1840, all the fellows were bound to celibacy, but that restriction was then removed. The scholars are chosen from among the undergraduates, after an examination in Greek and Latin. They hold their situation till they can attain the degree of master of arts, a period generally of five years. Students, after an examination in Greek and Latin, are admitted as fellow-commoners, pensioners, or sizars, which last class is limited to thirty, and is partially maintained out of the College funds; noblemen, noblemen's sons, and baronets, have the privilege of forming a separate order, with peculiar advantages, on the payment of additional charges. The course of general instruction extends over four years, the principal studies of each year being successively mathematics, logic, natural philosophy and astronomy, and ethics; and two commencements are held every year, on Shrove Tuesday and the first Tuesday after 8th July, for the purpose of conferring degrees. A medical school has been long attached to the University, to which has lately been added a school of civil engineering; and diplomas in surgery and civil engineering are granted by the Board on the completion of the prescribed courses. The College possesses a fine library of about 106,000 printed volumes, and 1,500 manuscripts; and the number is increased annually by about 1,500 vols., which are partly purchased and partly obtained under the Copyright Act; also a well-stocked botanic garden and a museum. The funds of the College, arising from lands and the fees of the students, are managed solely by the provost and seven senior fellows, who form a board, to whom the whole government of the University, both in its executive, and, so far as the statutes permit, legislative branches, is committed. The buildings, which include a large extent of ground, now nearly in the middle of the city, consist of one very large and two smaller squares; in these are the chapel, the theatre for examinations, the museum, the library, the dining hall, the printing office, and chambers for the fellows and students. Attached to the buildings is a large space planted for the recreation of the students, and a smaller enclosure for the provost and fellows. The provost's residence and the medical school are apart from the main body of the buildings. James I., by his Charter, in the eleventh year of his reign, 1613, first granted to the University the right of returning two burgesses to represent it in Parliament. This number was reduced to one by the Union, but was restored by the Reform Act. The constituency, which now amounts to about 1,500, consists of the provost, fellows, and scholars, who enjoy the right without payment, and all ex-fellows, ex-scholars, masters of arts, and those of higher degree, who retain the right during life on payment of a fee of £5.

The average number of students on the books of Trinity College is 1,500, and the number of students entering in each year was, on an average, from 1845 to 1849, 351, and from 1850 to 1852, 271.

The income of the College amounts, on an average, to £64,000; of which sum about £36,000 arises from entrance and annual fees paid by students to the College and their tutors, the fees on Degrees and other incidental and contingent sources.

Queen's Colleges.—Under the Act of 8 & 9 Vic., c. 66, passed in 1845, for establishing new Colleges in Ireland, charters have been granted to three Colleges, called the Queen's Colleges of Belfast, Cork, and Galway; with power to hold lands of £5,000 annual value. The body politic and corporate of each consists of the President, Vice-President, and twenty Professors, whose number may be augmented to thirty by the Crown. The Professors are classed in three faculties.

FIRST FACULTY—Arts, consisting of two divisions—Literary, including the Professors of Greek, Latin, History, and English, other Modern Languages, and the Celtic Languages.—Scientific, including the Professors of Mathematics, Natural Philosophy, Chemistry, Natural History, Logic and Metaphysics, Mineralogy and Geology, Civil Engineering and Agriculture.

SECOND FACULTY—Medicine, including the Professors of Anatomy and Physiology, Practice of Medicine, Practice of Surgery, Materia Medica, and Midwifery.

THIRD FACULTY—Law, including the Professors of English Law, and of Jurisprudence and Political Economy.

Each division of the Faculty of Arts, and those of Medicine and Law, choose annually a Dean of Faculty, who presides over the meetings of the respective faculties. The general government and administration of affairs is vested in a council, consisting of the President, the Vice-President, and the four Deans of Faculty; the President, and in his absence, the Vice-President, to be chairman, and to have a second or casting vote. The duties of the council are, to make regulations in cases not provided for by the statutes; to arrange the courses of instruction; to preserve discipline; to receive all fees and other sources of income; and to regulate the Library and Museum. Every regulation to be sanctioned by the signature of the President or Vice-President. The other officers are, a Registrar, Bursar, Librarian, and Curator of the Museum. The supreme authority is vested in a Board of Visitors, appointed by the Crown, which is to hold ordinary visitations every third year, during the College Session, and extraordinary visitations, on giving three weeks' notice to the President.

The College Session is divided into three sections: 1—from the commencement of the session in October to the Christmas recess; 2—from the Christmas to the Easter recess; 3—from the Easter recess to the close of the session in the middle of June. The Colleges were opened for the admission of students in October, 1849.

Queen's University.—By Letters Patent, dated 15th August, 1850, the Queen has founded an University to be called "The Queen's University in Ireland," with powers to grant degrees in the faculties of Arts, Medicine, and Law, as such are granted by other universities, to Students who have completed their studies in any one of the Queen's Colleges of Belfast, Cork, or Galway. The University consists of a Chancellor and Senate, nominated by the Crown, and to hold office during pleasure (the Earl of Clarendon, then Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, was appointed the first Chancellor); to be a corporation with perpetual succession, with power to sue and be sued, to make by-laws, to use a common seal, and to hold lands, the annual profits of which may amount to not more than £10,000. One or more visitors to be occasionally appointed by the Crown. The Senate meets at Dublin Castle, for holding examinations and granting degrees pursuant to such examinations; the examiners are appointed annually by the Senate. Power granted to the Senate of admitting, by special grace, graduates of other universities to similar degrees in the Queen's University, and to receive as evidence of medical education certificates of attendance upon the lectures or hospital practice of such other schools of medicine as shall afford full evidence of competency: provided students tendering such certificates, shall have attended in some one of the Queen's Colleges at least one-third of the medical lectures prescribed in the course for the degree of Doctor of Medicine. Power granted to the Senate with the approbation of the Lords of the Treasury, to form a scale of fees for degrees, which are to be a fund for the University expenses, and for endowing Scholarships, Exhibitions, and Prizes. The three Queen's Colleges to be Colleges of the University, and their professors to be professors of the same; but the Colleges not to be under the jurisdiction of the Senate, farther than as regards the regulations for degrees in the faculties above mentioned. The Senate of the University held its first meeting on the 19th of June, 1851, when the warrant of the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland appointing her Majesty's Castle of Dublin as the place in which the University shall have its seat and hold its meetings was read; and the Regulations which had been prepared by the Presidents and Vice-Presidents of the Queen's Colleges of Belfast, Cork, and Galway, for the course of study to be pursued by Students therein, to qualify them for University Degrees, were submitted to the Senate, pursuant to the provisions of the Charter. On the 12th August a Seal for the University was approved of; and a code of By-laws and Regulations adopted by the Senate; and, on the 30th of that month, this code was sanctioned by the Lord Lieutenant, as required by the Charter. Fees to be paid on degrees and diplomas have been, at different times, fixed by the Senate, and approved of by the Lords Commissioners of her Majesty's Treasury, as required by the Charter. The Senate has agreed to recognise the Lectures of Professors in Universities and Chartered Institutions, as part of the qualification of medical education, required for the Degree of M.D.

At Meetings of the Senate of the University degrees and diplomas have been conferred on candidates from the Queen's Colleges, in the following numbers:—

At the meeting of the Senate of 11th October, 1854, a candidate from Glasgow University was admitted to the degree of M.D., by special grace, under the Charter of this University; in 1855 and 1856, degrees were conferred upon members of other Universities.

Maynooth College.—This College was founded in 1795, by an Act of the Irish Parliament, which passed both Houses without a dissentient vote. A sum of about £8,000, subject to certain deductions, was annually voted by the Irish, and afterwards by the Imperial, Parliament, for its maintenance, from 1795 to 1807, when £5,000 additional were voted for the enlargement of the buildings. The annual vote from 1808 to 1813 was £8,283, and from 1813 to 1845 it was raised to £8,928. The annual grant for the first four years was principally expended in erecting and furnishing the front range of the College: the cost of the other portions of the buildings, successively erected in 1808, 1815, 1824, and 1835, was defrayed partly from the specific grant of £5,000 for that purpose, partly from several unconditional donations to the College, amounting to £6,000, and partly from the accumulated savings on the entrance fees, and pensions of the students. The total amount of donations and bequests to the College, including the sums funded for bourses, was £31,681, besides all the fee simple estates of the late Lord Dunboyne, in the county of Meath, which now return to the College £460 per annum. The entrance fees and pensions of the students from 1813 to 1844, amounted to more than £84,000. The number of students increased with the enlargement of the buildings from 50 to 250; then gradually rising to 400, it amounted in 1836, and the three following years, to 478; but between 1841 and 1845 it fell to an average of 430; of these 250 were charged on the Parliamentary vote; the others paid an annual pension for their maintenance. By the Act of 8 & 9 Vic. c. 25, the College was placed on a new footing, and permanently endowed for the maintenance and education of 500 students, and of 20 senior scholars on the Dunboyne foundation which has been uniformly since that time the total number of students. Besides providing for the annual cost of commons, &c., for these 520 students, of allowances to the 20 Dunboyne students, and to 250 students of the three senior classes, and of salaries to the President, Superiors, and Professors, the Act moreover vested in the Commissioners of Public Works a sum of £30,000 for erecting the buildings necessary to accommodate the enlarged number of students. No applicant can be received as a student of Maynooth College unless he be designed for the priesthood in Ireland, be sixteen years of age, recommended by his bishop, and answer satisfactorily at his entrance examination. The subject-matters of the entrance examination prescribed for the three lowest classes are:

1. For the Humanity Class, 1st and 2nd books of Bello Gallico of Cæsar's Commentaries; Sallust; Virgil's Eclogues; 1st, 2nd, 3rd, and 4th books of the Æneid; Horace's Epistles; Cicero's Four Orations against Catiline; Greek Grammar; Gospel of St. John; Lucian's Dialogues, 1st book; 1st, 2nd, and 3rd books of Xenophon's Cyropædia; Murray's Abridgment of English Grammar; a short system of Geography.

2. For the Rhetoric Class, Algebra, as far as Quadratic Equations included; and, besides the foregoing authors, Cicero's Orations on the Manilian Law, for Archias, Milo, Marcellus, and Ligarius; 1st, 2nd, and 3rd books of Livy; Odes and Satires of Horace; 5th, 6th, 7th, and 8th books of the Æneid; 1st, 3rd, 4th, and 10th Satires of Juvenal; Enchiridion of Eripietus; Xenophon's Anabasis, 1st and 2nd books; Homer's Iliad, 1st, 2nd, 3rd, and 4th books; Grecian and Roman History.

For the Logic Class, besides the foregoing authors and amount of mathematical knowledge specified: 1st, 2nd, 3rd, and 4th books of Livy; Cicero's Offices; Virgil's Georgics; last four books of the Æneid; Horace's Art of Poetry; 5th, 6th, 7th, and 8th books of Homer's Iliad; Demosthenes' Philippics, and de Corona; Longinus de Sublimitate; six books of Euclid, or Darro's Geometry, and English and Irish History.

The ordinary course of studies requires eight years for its completion: the first two years are devoted to the higher Greek and Latin Classics, to Rhetoric, Mathematics, English Composition, and the Historical Books of the Bible; the two following years to Logic, Moral Philosophy, and the French language—to Mathematics, Natural Philosophy, and Ecclesiastical History; and the last four years to Theology, Sacred Scriptures, Ecclesiastical History, and to the Hebrew and Irish languages. After the completion of this course students are deemed sufficiently well informed to engage in the duties of the sacred ministry; and those who merited the highest honours during their course are selected for the Dunboyne establishment, on which they continue their studies for three additional years.

The Roman Catholic University was established at a synodal meeting, held on the 18th May, 1854, when the office of Rector was finally committed to the charge of the Very Rev. Dr. Newman, his previous nomination by the committee appointed by the synod of Thurles, in September, 1851, having been already confirmed by the Pope. The University Session consists of three Terms: the first before Christmas, the second between Christmas and Easter, the third after Easter—extending, with the Christmas and Easter recesses, through thirty-eight weeks.

A first Examination in the elements of Latin and Greek Grammar, of Mathematics, &c., will take place at entrance, and a second at the end of two years of residence, on passing which, the Student will receive the title of Scholar of the University. The subjects of Study during these two years will be the Classics, Geometry, Algebra, Logic, Geography, Chronology, and Ancient Irish, and English History. The Scholar may then leave the University, or pass into the Schools of Medicine, of Civil Engineering, and of other Material and Physical Sciences; or continue his studies in Arts for another two years, at the end of which a third Examination will be held for the degree of B.A. The subjects of Study will consist of Modern History, Political Economy, Ethics, Metaphysics, Analytical Mathematics, the Principles of Law, the Elements of Astronomy and Chemistry. The M.A.'s course will follow. The Classical and Mathematical Classes of the University were opened on the 3rd November, 1854, at the University house, 86, Stephen's-green, Dublin.

The College of St. Columba, near Dublin, has been founded for the purpose of establishing, under the management of a collegiate body, a system of religious education, in strict conformity with the principles and formularies of the Established Church. The course of instruction preparatory to the University is of the same nature as that of the great Public Schools in England.

The following Irish Colleges and Medical Schools are in connexion with the University of London; and students from them are entitled to claim degrees and certificates from it on possessing the requisite qualifications:—

COLLEGES.—St. Patrick's College, Carlow; St. Kyran's College, Kilkenny; St. Patrick's College, Thurles.

MEDICAL SCHOOLS.—School of Physic; Royal College of Surgeons; Apothecaries' Hall; Richmond Hospital School of Anatomy; Original School of Anatomy, Peter-street; Theatre of Anatomy, Peter-street; all in Dublin city; also Stevens's, Meath, St. Vincent's, Mercer's, Jervis-street, City of Dublin, and Coombe Hospitals, in the same city. Cork Recognised School of Medicine; Cork North and South Infirmarys in conjunction, in Cork city; and Queen's County Infirmary.

Endowed Schools of Royal and Private Foundation.—By the Act of 33 Geo. III., the Endowed Schools of royal and private foundation, and subsequently the Diocesan Schools, were placed under Commissioners appointed by the Crown, styled "The Commissioners of Education," who have founded 30 exhibitions, of from £25 to £50 each, for students who enter Trinity College from any of the following schools; viz., Armagh, Dungannon, Enniskillen, and Cavan. Students who enter Trinity College from the Classical Schools of Erasmus Smith, viz., Drogheda, Ennis, Galway, and Tipperary, are also entitled to exhibitions, after a special examination, and to hold them till they are of the standing which qualifies them for a Master's degree.

A return made to the House of Commons shows the heads of the receipts and expenditure of the Royal schools for the year ended 1st November, 1853:—

Of the exhibitions founded in Trinity College for pupils from these schools, the number conferred in the last 10 years has only been 14.

The Sunday School Society was founded in 1809, when there were about 80 Sunday Schools in operation. In 1818, the number of schools amounted to 554, with 59,881 pupils. The number of schools in connexion with the Society, on the 1st of January of each of the following years, was—

The receipts for the year 1855, were: collections and subscriptions in Ireland, £583 5s. 7d.; in England, £987 8s. 8d.; from Scotland, £276 0s. 9d.; bequests, £215 13s. 9d.; sale of books, £355 12s. 11d.; total, £2,418 9s. 8d. In addition to the money contributions, the Society has received 15,000 Bibles and 15,500 Testaments from the British and Foreign Bible Society. The number of Schools to which gratuitous grants were made during the year 1856 was 1,048, containing 91,404 scholars; 297 other Schools were also supplied with Bibles, and other books at reduced prices.

The Society for Promoting the Education of the Poor, commonly called the Kildare-place Society, originated in a voluntary institution, formed 2nd December, 1811, the principles of which were stated to be "the admission of pupils, uninfluenced by religious distinctions, and the reading of the Bible or Testament, without note or comment, by all the pupils who had attained a suitable proficiency; excluding catechisms and controversial treatises: the Bible or Testament not to be used as a class book from which children should be taught to read or spell." In consequence of a recommendation made in 1812, by commissioners appointed to inquire into the state of the schools and charities of public foundation, that "no attempt should be made to influence or disturb the peculiar religious tenets of any sect or description of Christians," and of the pledge given to the same effect by the Kildare-street Society, a Parliamentary grant of public money was given in 1819, which was continued and augmented for a series of years, as stated in the following table :—

In 1824, it was ascertained from the report of a commission of inquiry into the state of public education, that out of 400,348 children, whose parents paid for their education, there were 81,060 Protestants, and 319,288 Roman Catholics; while out of 56,201 children educated in the Kildare-place schools, 26,237 were Protestants, and only 29,964 Roman Catholics. The commissioners consequently recommended that the grants of public money for the education of the poor should be vested in a board nominated by the government, under arrangements calculated to prevent any apprehension of interference with peculiar religious tenets. The recommendation was reported to the House of Commons by a committee in 1823, and on the subject being again referred to a committee in 1830, it was reported on favourably. In the same year the annual grant to the Kildare-place Society was withdrawn, since which period the schools gradually declined; in 1854, the Dublin Model Schools of the Society were put under the management of the Church Education Society.

Board of National Education.—In 1833, the grants of public money for the education of the poor were intrusted to the charge of the Lord Lieutenant, to be expended on the instruction of the children of every religious denomination, under the superintendence of Commissioners appointed by the crown, and named “The Commissioners of National Education.” The principles on which the Commissioners act are, that the schools shall be open alike to Christians of every denomination; that no pupil shall be required to attend at any religious exercise, or to receive any religious instruction which his parents or guardians do not approve, and that sufficient opportunity shall be afforded to the pupils of each religious persuasion to receive separately, at appointed times, such religious instruction as their parents or guardians think proper. This system of united education is one which does not exclude children of any denomination, while it admits to a participation of its benefits those of every religious creed who may wish for instruction without interfering with any conscientious scruples. The duty of the Commissioners consists, therefore, in guarding against any infraction of these fundamental principles from any quarter; in establishing regulations as to details, so as best to secure the general efficiency of the system; and in granting or refusing assistance to every applicant, for erecting and maintaining suitable buildings for schools, and for furnishing them with books and other requisites.

In 1845, the Commissioners were incorporated under the name of “The Commissioners of National Education in Ireland,” with power to hold lands to the yearly value of £40,000, to purchase goods and chattels, to receive gifts and bequests to that amount, to erect and maintain schools where and as many as they shall think proper, to grant leases for three lives or thirty-one years, to sue and to be sued by their corporate name in all courts, and to have a common seal, a power being vested in the Lord Lieutenant to fill up vacancies, to appoint additional members provided the total number does not exceed fifteen, and to remove members at his pleasure. The Commissioners being enabled, under this charter, to accept conveyances of property in their corporate capacity, have resolved, in every case of making a grant for building a National school-house, to take upon themselves the trust for the public, and the charge of repairs; leaving the local managers, who in general are not the trustees, the rights they now possess as to the appointment and removal of teachers, and the general regulation of the school.

The following return gives the number of schools and pupils under the superintendence of the Commissioners since the commencement of the system, and the amount of Parliamentary grants annually voted for its maintenance :—

The amount of salaries paid to teachers, monitors, &c., for the year 1855 was £105,043 3s. 11d. The number of teachers trained during the year was 288. The total number of National School teachers trained to 31st December, 1855, is 4,275.

Since the Commissioners adopted the principle of classing their teachers according to their qualifications, they have, on three former occasions, in 1848, 1851, and in 1852, raised their salaries. District model schools have been opened at Newry, Ballymena, Clonmel, Dunmanway, Coleraine, Bailieborough, Trim, Athy, Galway, Kilkenny, Limerick, and Waterford, which afford education to 2,949 pupils, with an average attendance of 2,114. It is also the intention of the Commissioners to erect schools in Belfast and Londonderry. Thirty-one model agricultural schools are in full operation, 3 in partial operation, and 3 building.

POOR LAW.

The Poor Law came into operation in 1839, but none of the workhouses were opened for the admission of paupers till 1840. The following table affords a series of annual returns of the numbers of paupers relieved in the workhouses from the commencement of proceedings under the Irish Poor Relief Act, as well as of the numbers relieved out of the workhouses since the passing of the Out-door Relief Act of 10 Vic., c. 31, in 1847, to 29th September, 1855, together with the total expenditure for Relief of the Poor in the same period:—

The gradual diminution of pauperism in Ireland since 1849 is shown in the above table, and from returns obtained from the clerks of the Unions we are enabled to report a further decrease in 1856, both in numbers and expense. The expenditure for 1856 may be taken at £259,500, a decrease from 1855 of £103,759. The number of paupers receiving relief at the following dates in 1851 to 1856, were as follows:—

Medical Charities.—The provisions of the Medical Charities Act, 14 & 15 Vic., cap. 68, passed in 1851, by which Boards of Guardians were empowered to form the Poor Law Unions into Dispensary Districts, subject to approval by the Poor Law Commissioners, and to provide Dispensaries for the same, took effect on the 12th November, 1851, being the day after the first appointment of Commissioners under that Act was gazetted. The Act makes some alteration in the constitution of the Poor Law Commission, and provides for the appointment of a Medical Commissioner, (who is required to be a Physician or Surgeon of 10 years' standing,) as one of the Poor Law Commissioners; and they are empowered to appoint Inspectors, being physicians or surgeons of not less than 7 years' standing, for the purposes of the Act. Each Dispensary District is placed under a Committee of Management, consisting of the Guardians in the district and of ratepayers elected by the Board of Guardians of the Union,—the number of each Committee being fixed by the Commissioners. The Board of Guardians provide the requisite accommodation for the Dispensaries in the several districts, medicines and appliances, and pay the salaries of the Medical Officers; the expenses being charged upon the Poor Rates of the Electoral Divisions comprised in the Dispensary District, according to the net annual value of each Division under the Poor Law valuation in force for the time being, from and after a day or days named by the Commissioners in their order declaring each district. The whole of the Unions in Ireland have been divided into Dispensary Districts, declared by sealed orders issued by the Commissioners; and the regulation of the Dispensaries under the management of such Committees is provided for by General Rules issued by the Commissioners or that purpose. The 163 Unions, containing 3,439 Electoral Divisions, are divided into 720 Dispensary

¶ Year of Public Works and Relief Committees.

Districts, giving an average of rather more than 4 Divisions to each District, the average population of the Districts being about 9,000, and for each Medical Officer thereof about 8,400. Each District is under a separate Committee, and has one or more Dispensaries or Dispensary stations, and one or more Medical Officers, whose duties are regulated by the Act and the General Rules issued under its provisions. The number of Dispensaries or Dispensary Stations in the 720 Districts is 982; the number of Medical Officers, 777: in some populous districts an apothecary is also appointed, the total number of these officers being 40; and in some few districts a midwife; the total number of midwives appointed for Dispensary Districts being 13. The Act put an end to all previous provisions for affording Dispensary Relief by means of Presentment from County Cess or Poor Rate. The future appointment of a Medical Officer for any Dispensary under the Act rests with the Committee of Management of the District, his salary being determined by the Board of Guardians of the Union, subject to the Commissioners' approval of such appointment and salary.

The expenditure and number of cases in which Medical Relief was afforded, under the Medical Charities Act, in 1852, (from the period of the opening of the respective dispensaries, to the 30th of September, 1852, equivalent to about one half year's operation of the Act), and in the three complete years ended 30th September, 1853, 1854, and 1855, were as follows:—

The number of cases of Diarrhoea and Cholera, returned by the Medical Officers of Dispensaries and Cholera Hospitals, in the year 1854 and 1855, were as follows:—

	1854.		1855.
Diarrhoea, ...	Cases, 23,872	Deaths, 892	Cases, 25,861	Deaths, 815

These numbers represent the cases treated by the Dispensary Medical Officers and in Hospitals under the Boards of Guardians; but do not include cases in other institutions or in private practice, the numbers of which there are no means of ascertaining in the absence of a general system of registration of deaths.

The Infirmaries for counties and cities are supported by county assessments not exceeding £700 at each assizes, or £1,400 annually for each county, aided by Treasury grants of £100 Irish for the surgeon's salary, by subscriptions, donations, and bequests, and by petty sessions' fines. These institutions are designed for the intern treatment of all serious cases, surgical and medical, which are curable and not contagious; and they sometimes give medical and surgical relief to extern patients on their attending at the Infirmary. They are governed by corporations, consisting of the Primate, Lord Chancellor, Bishop of the diocese, Rector or Vicar of the parish, life governors who have paid £21, and annual subscribers of three guineas. The Poor Law Commissioners may inspect these institutions as well as other hospitals supported in part by Grand Jury Cess or Parliamentary grants, and give directions in concert with the Local Governors, as to their management. In 1849, the number of intern patients in the Infirmaries was 11,114; extern, 45,930; total, 57,044. The expenditure amounted to £27,475 18s. 5d., and the average cost per head for each patient was 16s. 4½d., exclusive of the expense of medicine and salaries. The receipts for 1849 were: Grand Jury Presentments, £26,372 14s. 10d.; Parliamentary grant, £2,049 13s. 11½d.; subscriptions, £1,332 11s. 10d.; other sources, £3,373 1s.; total, £33,128 1s. 7½d. In 1852, £10,245 was presented by the Grand Juries for infirmaries.

Fever Hospitals are of three kinds: 1. County hospitals, maintained by presentments, not exceeding £250 at each assizes, or £500 annually; 2. District hospitals, for cities, towns, or other parts of a county, maintained by private subscriptions, and aided by presentments not exceeding double the amount of the voluntary fund; 3. Poor Law Union fever hospitals, the expenses of which are charged upon the Union rates. The number of Grand Jury Fever Hospitals for which presentments were made in 1852 was 38, costing £14,688.

LUNACY.

The number of insane persons in 1855, as appears by the official returns, amounts to 13,493, distributed as follows:

	Males.	Females.	Total.
In District Lunatic Asylums, ...	1,720	1,802	3,522

Total number of insane of every denomination in Ireland, ... 6,926 6,567 13,493

The cost of the maintenance of the destitute insane in 1847 amounted to £46,737; in 1848, to £42,492; in 1849, to £40,957; and in 1850, to £37,253; the average number of patients (about 2,730) being the same.

BOARD OF CHARITABLE DONATIONS AND BEQUESTS.

The eleventh report of the Commissioners of Charitable Donations and Bequests in Ireland, dated 3rd May, 1856, states, that the amount of the trust funds vested in them on 31st December, 1855, was £205,969.

LOCAL TAXATION.

The local taxes are either general, extending over every district; or special, confined to particular portions of the country. The general taxes are Grand Jury Cess, Poor-rates, and Parish Cess, including rates for deserted children. The special rates are for lighting, cleansing, and watching, in all towns which have adopted the provisions of the 9 Geo. IV., cap. 82, or for the same and other purposes, under the Towns' Improvement Act of 1854; borough rates, in certain boroughs; pipe-water in cities, under general or local acts; boards of health, under 58 Geo. III., c. 47, in towns in which the Lord Lieutenant has appointed such boards, of which none, however, are at present in existence; and rates for particular places under special statutes; such as Ministers' Money, or rate in lieu of it, under 17 & 18 Chas. II., cap. 7, and 17 & 18 Vic. c. 11.

Grand Jury Cess.—This tax is levied under votes of the Grand Juries, called presentments, made at the Assizes. The purposes for which presentments are made are,—1. making new roads, bridges, quays, and gulleys; 2. repairing same; 3. building and repairing courts of justice; 4. building and repairing prisons; 5. prison expenses; 6. police expenses; 7. salaries to county officers; 8. public charities; 9. repayment of government advances; 10. miscellaneous. Some of those presentments are imposed and rated at the pleasure of the Grand Jury; but the following are imperative by Act of Parliament:—County infirmary and fever hospitals; district fever hospitals and infirmaries (partly); building and repairing diocesan schools; expenses of inquests; constabulary force (partly); prosecution of offenders; maintaining deserted children; expenses of the general valuation; expenses of Commissioners of Public Works; compensation for malicious injuries; expenses under the Arms Act; repayment of government advances; and some others of minor importance. Presentments for the general use of the county are levied on the county at large; those for particular districts on the baronies or parishes enjoying their benefit. The amount of Grand Jury Cess in each County for every fifth year, from 1815 to 1850, is as follows:—

Poor-rates.—The poor-rate is levied under the assessment of poundage rate on the net annual value of the property rateable, which annual value is declared to be "the rent for which one year with another the property might be let from year to year, the probable annual average cost of repairs, insurance, and other necessary expenses for repairs, and all public charges, except tithes, being paid by the tenant." The property liable to poor-rates is:—all land and buildings; mines seven years open; commons, and all profits out of land; navigations; rights of way, and other rights and easements upon land; tolls. The following kinds of property are exempt:—turf-bogs, for which rent is not paid; places of worship; buildings used exclusively for charitable purposes; buildings used for public purposes; burial grounds. The persons liable are: the occupier of the rateable property at the time the rate is made, and in default of his payment, the subsequent occupier; but the occupier of tenements under £8 value in certain boroughs, and at and under £4 value elsewhere, is not liable, and in such cases the immediate lessor is to be rated instead (except where the occupier holds under a lease made before the passing of the Act). The owner of any rent (except owners of rent-charges) is liable to allow the person paying him rent one-half the amount of the rate. The owner of tithe is liable to allow the payer of the tithe the entire poundage paid on the property out of which the tithe arises. Persons deriving any private profit or use from property exempted as above, are also rateable for rents received in respect of such exempted property, to the extent of one-half of the poundage rate. Rates for expenses incurred on account of the whole union, are assessed by an equal rate on the whole; and they are assessed for each electoral division for the special expenses incurred by such division. After three years from the formation of a union, the Guardians of any two or more electoral divisions may agree to have the charges of those divisions borne in common. The accounts of the Guardians are made up half-yearly, and audited by persons appointed by the Poor Law Commissioners. The annual amount levied as poor-rates, since passing of the Act, has been returned to Parliament as follows:—

Parish Cess.—Parish Cess is levied for the following purposes:—coffins for the poor; salaries for parish officers; repairs of church-yards and clocks; collectors' and applotters' fees; expenses of fire-engines; expenses of survey; building watch-houses; purchase of registry books; law costs in cases of appeal. The tax is leviable on all lands and tenements within the parish, union, or chapelry, upon the occupiers, whether resident or not, with the exception of places used exclusively for charitable or public purposes. Vestries for assessment are to be held in Easter week; if not then, at a time to be named by the bishop; every occupier of property chargeable with cess has a right to vote; and no assessment is to be allowed at any vestry, for any purpose not specified in the public notice of such vestry. The rate is recoverable by civil bill, or by order of two justices. The average amount of cess for other than church purposes, in the three years ending 1832 was £23,319 2s. 4^d.

Deserted Children.—The rate is levied for the maintenance and education of children deserted and exposed within the parish; not more than £5 to be allowed for each child. All parishes are subject to the tax, which is leviable on the occupiers of the houses in them. The assessment is to be made by a vestry to be held in the first week in June, at which three overseers are to be appointed by the minister, wardens, and parishioners present. The amount of sums raised for this rate is generally included in the amount of parish cess; and its special levy has been very seldom resorted to since the statutable provision made for the same purpose by Grand Jury presentment.

Lighting, Paving, Cleansing, and Watching Rates.—This rate is leviable, by Act 9 Geo. IV., cap. 82, in the towns in which it is adopted, for lighting the streets and avenues with oil or gas; providing watchmen and watch-houses; paving, cleansing, and watering the streets and avenues; supplying water by means of wells, pumps, and pipes; making sewers and drains; providing fire-engines; and naming the streets, and numbering the houses. The rate is a poundage, according to the poor-rate valuation, on a graduated scale; the maximum of which is, on houses of the yearly value of £5 and under £10, 6d. in the pound; £10 and under £20, 9d.; £20 and upwards, of 1s. The rate on houses of the first of these classes, i.e. those under £10, to be equal to two-thirds of the rate imposed at the same time on those of the second class named, i.e. those of £10 and under £20 valuation, and the rate on the second class of houses to be equal to one-half the third or £20 class. Houses under £5 yearly value are exempt. Shops, warehouses, cellars, mills, yards, gardens, and tenements of £5 and upwards of annual value, are taxable; land used for agriculture is exempt. The provisions of the Act have been adopted, either wholly or in part, in 56 towns; but it has been superseded by the Towns' Improvement Act of 1854.

Borough Rate.—The towns liable to the imposition of a borough rate are the boroughs of Belfast, Clonmel, Cork, Drogheda, Dublin, Kilkenny, Limerick, Londonderry, Sligo, Waterford, and all such other towns having a population exceeding 3,000, as shall have a charter of incorporation granted to them on petition of the inhabitants; such charter has since been granted to the town of Wexford, which therefore has been brought under the provisions of the Act. The rateable property is nearly the same as that for poor-rate, and is now rated according to the same valuation. The rate is leviable only in case, after payment of all debts due from the body corporate contracted before the passing of the Municipal Corporation Reform Act, 3 and 4 Vic., cap. 108, and after satisfaction of all legal claims upon the real and personal estate of such body, the borough fund is not sufficient, or in case there be no borough fund. It is not to exceed 1s. in the pound in any case, and not 3d. in the pound in boroughs where a local tax for paving, lighting, and cleansing is in force. The rate is to be applied to the payment of the salaries of the mayor and other borough officers, to the compensation of officers whose offices have been abolished, to coroners' fees, to defray the expenses of additional constabulary, when necessary, to upholding the corporate and police buildings, and to the payment of all other expenses incurred in carrying into effect the provisions of the Act. The borough council is to direct the assessment, collection, and application of the rate; any surplus of the fund is to be applied towards paving, lighting, and cleansing. Arrears of rate under £20 may be recovered by civil bill. Any order of the council for payment of money from the borough fund is removable into the Queen's Bench by certiorari.

Pipe-Water.—The pipe-water tax, for supplying the places liable to it with water, is leviable in every city or town which gives title to the see of an archbishop or bishop. The persons and property liable are the same as in the case of Grand Jury Cess. The management of the assessment, &c., is vested in the chairman of the commissioners for lighting, paving, and watching, or in the chairman of the municipal commissioners, under the Corporation Reform Act; and in the want of these, on such of the justices having jurisdiction within the town as the Lord Lieutenant shall appoint. The amounts levied are included in the general returns of Grand Jury Cess.

Ministers' Money.—Ministers' Money was a tax levied under the Statute of 17 & 18 Chas. II., c. 7, upon certain cities and towns, for the maintenance of the incumbents there having actual charge of souls, at the rate of one shilling in the pound on the yearly value of each house—but so, that houses valued at upwards of £60 per annum are to be taxed at the rate of those of £60 and no more. The Act 17 and 18 Vic., c. 11, passed in 1854, repeals the 17 and 18 Char. II., c. 7, and enacts that the charge of ministers' money for the year ending 31st December, 1853, be ascertained, and the sums certified shall, in future, be raised in each parish of the towns liable, by a rate on all houses now chargeable, except those rated at or under £10. The rate may be redeemed by payment of 14 years' purchase of amount assessed. The sums ascertained and certified as chargeable in each town liable to the tax, under the latter Act, were as follows:—

Clongmel, £341; Cork, £2,324; Drogheda, £288; Dublin, £9,868; Kilkenny, £307; Kinsale, £74; Limerick, £310; Waterford, £940.

Town Rates.—The Towns' Improvement Act for Ireland, 17 and 18 Vic., c. 103, passed in 1854, with a view "to make better provision for the paving, lighting, draining, cleansing, supplying with water," and otherwise regulating towns in Ireland, may be applied, for any one or more, or for all, of its purposes, to any city or town in Ireland having a population of 1,500 or more. It supersedes the previous Act of 9 Geo. IV., c. 82, for lighting, cleansing, and watching cities and towns in Ireland (except where the latter is already in force and the new Act is not adopted), and incorporates with itself provisions of certain general Acts, such as the "Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845," and others, for the purpose of carrying its provisions into effect. The application of the Act, in part or in whole, to any city or town depends, as did the previous Act, on the will of the inhabitant ratepayers, to be ascertained and signified in public meeting, after public notice, in manner provided in the Act, under the sanction and with the approval of the Lord Lieutenant; where there are Commissioners under a local Act, or a Town Council, the provisions of the Act may be adopted with consent of these bodies. In corporate towns, the Town Council or Municipal Commissioners are to be the Commissioners for carrying it into execution; in other towns adopting the Act, local Commissioners, with prescribed qualifications, are elected for the purpose by the ratepayers.

The local Commissioners may provide a court-house, if there be none already, and appoint a clerk and other officers for conducting the business arising under the Act, which provides for making and maintaining public sewers, and draining of houses; paving, maintaining, and improving the streets and public ways, removing obstructions, &c.; supply of water and erection of waterworks, &c.; lighting the town by gas or oil, erection of lamps, &c.; appointment of watchmen or constables, firemen, and provision of fire engines, &c.; cleansing of streets, &c.; prevention of nuisances, smoke, sale of unwholesome or adulterated food; ventilation of buildings, and other matters of police and sanitary regulation prescribed by the Act, or for which the local Commissioners may make by-laws, subject to the sanction of the Lord Lieutenant.

For such purposes the local Commissioners may make and levy rates, and for certain of these purposes may borrow money on the security of the rates. A "general assessment" may be made and levied on the basis of the poor rate valuation for the general purposes of the Act, and in repayment of such loans, once a year, and not exceeding 1s. 6d. in the pound where the provisions for the supply of water are adopted, or 1s. where they are not adopted. And "private or district assessments" may also be made and levied on particular premises or localities, for sewers, drains, and private improvements.

Municipal Boroughs.—Under the 137th sec. of the Municipal Reform Act (3 & 4 Vict., c. 108), the following abstract of statement of moneys received and expended on account of boroughs in Ireland, was presented to Parliament in 1856.

Turnpike Trusts.—The income of the several Turnpike Trusts in the year ended 31st December, 1854, was £28,081 4s. 9½d.; expenditure, £28,073 13s. 3d.; debt, £86,190 1s. 2½d. In 1855 a Commissioner (Edward Clements, Esq., Barrister-at-Law) was appointed to inquire into the state of the Turnpike Trusts or Roads in Ireland, who found that the entire extent of road remaining under the turnpike system was 325 miles. The Commissioner in his report recommends the abolition by statute of the system on all these roads. By this simple act of abolition the roads will fall under the charge of the County Surveyors, and be repaired by a tax on their respective baronies.

VALUATION OF PROPERTY IN IRELAND.

The Townland Valuation of Ireland, under the Act 6 & 7 Wm. IV., c. 84, was commenced in 1830 by Richard Griffith, esq., LL.D., the Commissioner appointed under the Act. The object of the valuation was to provide for the more equally levying Grand Jury Cess and county charges.

The Poor Law Valuation, under the Poor Law Act, passed in 1838, requires each tenement to be rated separately, according to its net annual value; and includes within its scope some sorts of property, such as mines, quarries, and fisheries, which are not rateable to the county cess.

In order to remedy the inconvenience arising from different systems of valuation, the Act 9 & 10 Vic., c. 110, was passed in 1846, for a Tenement Valuation, which provides, that every tenement which is a rateable hereditament, under the provisions of the Poor Law Act 1 & 2 Vic., c. 56, shall be separately valued upon an estimate of the net annual value, i. e., of the rent at which, one year with another, the same might, in its actual state, be reasonably expected to let from year to year; the probable annual average cost of repairs, insurance, and other expenses, necessary to maintain the hereditament in its actual state, and all rates, taxes, and public charges, except tithe-rent charge, being paid by the tenant. This Act has been amended by another Act (15 & 16 Vic., c. 63), passed in 1852, in which one uniform principle of valuation for all kinds of assessments was extended to the whole of Ireland, having reference to the intrinsic worth and capabilities of the soil, its adaptation to different descriptions of produce, and the value of the same according to a scale of prices of agricultural produce, embodied in the Act; but taking the net annual value, as in the Poor Law Act, for houses, mines, fisheries, buildings, &c., to which such principle of comparison could not be applied. Under this Act, the whole of Ireland will be re-valued or revised. A Tenement Valuation has been already completed in seventeen counties, and six counties of a city or town; and is in progress in eight other counties, and one county of a town.

TERRITORIAL DIVISIONS, and acreable extent of each PROVINCE and COUNTY OF IRELAND, and annual value of land and houses, according to Griffith's Townland Valuation, as also the annual value of Live Stock in 1841 and 1851.

INCUMBERED ESTATES.

In 1848, the Act 11 & 12 Vic., c. 48, to facilitate the sale of incumbered estates in Ireland was passed; but owing to the defectiveness of its construction it proved wholly inoperative, inasmuch that not a single estate was sold under its provisions; and in the following year, 1849, the Act of 12 & 13 Vic., c. 77, was passed, and is now the law of the land on this subject. Under the provisions of this Act, a royal commission was issued, under the title of "The Commission for sale of Incumbered Estates in Ireland," having three Commissioners appointed by the Crown; and to be a court of Record, with powers to frame rules for regulating its proceedings; which rules, when approved of by the Privy Council and enrolled in Chancery, were to have the same authority as if enacted by Parliament. The important powers thus confided to them were, that the Commissioners were authorized, on the application, within three years, (since extended to July 28, 1858,) of an owner or incumbrancer, to sell lands or leases of certain duration, in a summary way, for payment of the charges affecting them; and that the effect of such conveyance by the Commissioners should be to pass to the purchaser the fee simple and inheritance of the land, discharged from all former rights, titles, or incumbrances whatsoever. Similar effect was given to the conveyance of leasehold interests; so that in both cases the Act confers upon the purchaser an unquestionable parliamentary title. The Commissioners were empowered to investigate title, to sell either by public auction or by private sale, to distribute the purchase money, when received, or in fit cases to lodge it in Chancery, in case of a suit pending there.

The Commissioners commenced their sittings for the despatch of business in October, 1849. The total number of petitions presented to the Commissioners in the seven years ended 31st August, 1856, were 3,940. Of these 1,117 have been lodged by owners, and the Court has made 3,096 absolute orders for sale. The first sale was held on the 21st of February, 1850. Since that date, to the 31st August, 1856, the number of lots sold amount to 9,329, of which 6,208 were bought by Irish, and 283 by English, Scotch, and Foreign purchasers; and the amount of purchase money paid by the three latter parties was £2,510,306. The gross amount produced by the sales was £18,299,351. The Court has distributed to creditors £16,527,576, inclusive of £2,569,397 allowed to incumbrancers who became purchasers. A sum of £1,459,737 remains in hand to satisfy unadjusted claims.

INLAND NAVIGATION.

Grand Canal.—The Grand Canal, commenced in 1765, proceeds from the south of Dublin westward by Hazel-hatch, Sallins, Robertstown, Philipstown, Tullamore, Ferbane, to the Shannon at Shannon Harbour. Its branches are—1. From Shannon Harbour to Ballinasloe, on the borders of Galway and Roscommon counties. 2. From near Sallins to Naas, Newbridge, and Kilcullen bridge. 3. From Woodville to the principal reservoir at Ballinacorney. 4. From Robertstown to Miltoono. 5. From Robertstown to Rathangan, Monasterevan, and Athy, with a sub-branch from Monasterevan to Portarlino and Mountmellick. 6. From Philipstown to Killybeggan. The length of the main trunk, from the Liffey to the Shannon, is 80 miles, and thence to Ballinasloe, 15 miles, being 95 miles in a western direction; that of all the branches is 65½; total length, 160½. The summit level, 279 feet above sea-level, is near Robertstown, about 26 miles from Dublin. The annual tonnage of merchandise carried on the Grand Canal is about 240,000, producing toll to the amount of £18,600 per annum.

The Royal Canal, commenced in 1789, proceeds from the north side of Dublin, westward by Castleknock, Leixlip, Maynooth, Killock, Mullingar, Ballymahon, Keenagh, and Killashee, to Tarnonbarry, on the Shannon, with a branch from Killashee to Longford; total length, 92 miles. The summit level, 322 feet above sea-level, and fed from Lough Owel, in Westmeath county, near Mullingar, is about 53 miles from Dublin. The annual tonnage of all merchandise carried on the Royal Canal averages about 96,000, producing toll to the amount of £12,000 per annum.

The Ulster Canal proceeds from Charlemont, on the Blackwater river, by which it communicates with Lough Neagh, and passing south-west by Monaghan and Clones, enters the upper Lough Erne at its eastern extremity. Its length is 48 miles.

Shannon Navigation.—The river Shannon rises in Quilca mountain, in Leitrim county, passes southward between Connaught and Leinster to Limerick, forming in its course several large lakes, the principal of which are Loughs Allen, Reagh, and Derg, and turning westward, discharges itself into the Atlantic through a large estuary between the counties of Clare and Kerry, a distance of 254 miles. The navigation is open for traffic throughout its entire length, between the northern extremity of Lough Allen and Limerick, a distance of 143 miles in a direct course; but by adding the Boyle branch of nine miles, and the Strokestown branch of six miles, a total length of river and canal navigation of 158 miles is now open; of which 129 miles, viz., from Killashee to Leitrim, including the two branches above mentioned, are suited to the navigation of large steamers. In the main river of 115 miles the entire fall amounts only to 35 feet, which has been overcome by the erection of five locks. This important navigation, which occupies nearly a central position between the east and west coasts of Ireland, is connected with Dublin by means of the Grand and Royal Canals. The amount of tolls received in 1851 was £2,142, in 1853 £1,867, and in 1854 £1,771.

Barrow.—The Barrow navigation proceeds from Athy, where it communicates with the Grand Canal, by Carlow, Bagnalstown, and St. Mullins, below which it joins the river Barrow, which is navigable thence to the sea.

Boyne.—The Boyne navigation is carried from Drogheda to Slane in the bed of the river, and thence to Navan by Canal; the total length, 19 miles. The revenue derived from it is adequate to cover the expense of its maintenance, but is much diminished since the opening of the Navan branch of the Drogheda railway. The tolls produced £450 in 1851, and £395 in 1854.

Newry.—The Newry navigation is carried from Fathom, four miles below Newry, to that town by a ship canal, which admits vessels drawing 15 feet water; thence northward by canal to Portadown, a distance of 16½ miles, where it joins the Lower Bann, in the bed of which river it is continued to Lough Neagh. The tolls amount to about £5,000 per annum, arising from tonnage dues, 1s. per ton inward and 1d. outwards.

Tyrone.—The Tyrone navigation proceeds from Lough Neagh, in the bed of the Blackwater river, for a short distance, and thence to Coal Island, near Dungannon, by a canal 11 miles long. Its principal revenue arises from the conveyance of coal to the lake. The tolls produced £396 in 1853, and £413 in 1854.

Lagan.—The Lagan navigation proceeds from Belfast, partly in the river and partly by canal, by Lisburn and Moira, to Lough Neagh. Its total length is 28½ miles. The usual tonnage of its barges is 50 tons.

The total tonnage carried by all the canals and navigable rivers conjointly, in 1838, was about 600,000 tons; the amount of tolls £71,242, estimating the average rate of toll at 1d. per ton per mile.

RAILWAYS.

The chief features of the railway system in Ireland are—1st, the gauge, which is 5 feet 3 inches, and is compulsory—the only diversity now existing is the 4 feet 8½ inches of the Dublin and Kingstown Railway, that line having been constructed previous to the adoption of the broader gauge; 2nd, the heavy weight of rails (on some lines 90 lbs. per yard), the permanent character and moderate cost of the works generally, and a singular and almost entire freedom from tunnels. The average cost of the lines that are open has been, including carrying stock, &c., about £16,000 per mile; the maximum extreme is the Dublin and Kingstown, which cost £20,000 per mile, and the minimum extreme is the Killarney Junction, the construction of which has been successfully effected for about £5,000 per mile. The moderate cost of the Killarney Junction, and of the Waterford and Tramore, two of the most recently opened lines, will tend much to accelerate the extension of the railway system, as there are but few districts that will not enable such undertakings to yield a dividend, when constructed for so small an outlay. The Irish railways are exempt from passenger duty, and have participated to a considerable extent in the government loans.

The railway traffic of Ireland, since 1839, is exhibited in the following tables; the short mileage and immense passenger traffic of the Dublin and Kingstown Railway occasioned the high average per mile of receipts in the earlier years.

BAGENALSTOWN AND WEXFORD RAILWAY.

Capital authorized, £270,000, in shares of £10 each.

During the last session the sanction of Parliament was obtained to this Company's amended act, by which increased facilities are given for raising the necessary funds. By the provisions of this act the powers of borrowing have been extended and enlarged, and as each division of the line is opened for traffic, the Company is authorized to borrow one-third of the amount expended, to the extent of £90,000 in all.

The line will extend from the Irish South-Eastern Railway at Bagenalstown to the town of Wexford. Attention has hitherto been principally directed to the portion of the line between Bagenalstown and Borris, it being an object of importance to open this division, which can be immediately available for traffic, with the least possible delay; and considerable progress has been made with the works on the line, several of the public road bridges, as well as the extensive bridge over the river Dinin, having been completed, and three and a-half miles of the line brought to formation level, and ready to receive the ballasting and rails.

BALLYMENA, BALLYMONEY, AND PORTRUSH RAILWAY.

Capital authorized—£200,000 in 20,000 shares of £10 each, and loans, £60,000—together, £260,000. Length of line authorized, 42 miles. The works, for which Mr. Dargan is the contractor, are in progress.

BELFAST AND BALLYMENA RAILWAY.

Share capital, £385,000, and loans, £128,333—together, £513,333. The capital account shows £497,740 to have been received, and £526,242 expended. The length of the line is 37½ miles, which was opened for traffic on the 11th of April, 1848. The cost has been about £13,500 per mile.

The result of the Company's operations is as follows:—

BELFAST AND COUNTY DOWN RAILWAY.

Act of Incorporation passed 26th June, 1846, and for extension of Railway, 25th May, 1855. Subscription capital, £500,000, in 10,000 shares, of £50 each, and loans, £166,666—total, £666,666.

The length of line authorized is 45 miles 32 chains, of which 16½ miles, from Belfast to Holywood and Newtownards, are now open. The extension to Downpatrick, with branch to Ballinahinch, is in progress, and will be open in January, 1856, being an addition of 22 miles to the length of line. The Donaghadee extension from Newtownards will shortly be commenced. The business of the Company is shown in the following table:—

No dividend has been paid by this Company on the original shares.

A dividend at the rate of 4 per cent. was paid upon the preference shares for the half-year ending 30th June, 1856.

CORK, BLACKROCK, AND PASSAGE RAILWAY.

The Company is empowered to raise share capital to the amount of £170,000, and to borrow £56,668. The railway from Cork to Passage was opened on the 8th of June, 1850; its length is 6 miles. The Public Works Loan Commissioners have assisted the undertaking with an advance of £15,000. The traffic of the line is shown in the following statement:—

The receipts on Capital Account to the 28th October, 1854, were £168,148, and the expenditure was £163,506.

CORK AND YOUGHAL RAILWAY.

This Company was originally incorporated in 1846 as the "Cork and Waterford," but by the Act 17 and 18 Vic., cap. 206, passed 31st July, 1854, has been re-incorporated as the Cork and Youghal.

Capital, 37,500 shares of £10 each (£9 paid), £375,000, with power to borrow £125,000. Length of proposed line, 26 miles. By the "Cork and Youghal (Queenstown Branch) Act, 1855," the Company are empowered to construct a branch line to Queenstown, 5½ miles, and to create an additional £50,000 for that purpose if required. This Company possesses 300 £10 shares (paid up) of the Waterford and Tramore Railway, agreeably to the latter Company's Act of Incorporation. The works are in active progress.

DUBLIN AND BELFAST JUNCTION RAILWAY.

The act incorporating this Company was passed on the 21st July, 1845, and a further act authorizing the sale of the Navan Branch to the Dublin and Drogheda Railway Company, was obtained on the 2nd July, 1847. The capital authorized is £950,000, in 19,000 shares, of £50 each—with the power of borrowing £318,668. £45 per share has been called up.

The Capital Account to the 30th June, 1855, shows £1,061,866 to have been received, and £1,056,199 expended.

The line extends from Drogheda to Portadown, 56 miles, connecting the Dublin and Drogheda with the Ulster Railway, and thus forms an important link in the direct line of railway communication between Dublin and Belfast. A junction with the Dundalk and Enniskillen Railway is formed at Dundalk. The general business of the line, from the opening, is as follow:—

The Navan Branch has been sold to the Dublin and Drogheda Company, and is now in working. The amount of its cost, together with the interest thereon, to the 7th February, 1851, capitalized according to the provisions of the Act of Parliament, amounts to £186,389, which, at the rate of 5½ per cent. per annum, yields to this Company about £10,000 per annum, until the principal is paid off.

DUBLIN AND DROGHEDA RAILWAY.

The Capital Account of the Company shows £643,865 13s. 3d. to have been received, exclusive of loans and capital not called up, and £1,034,406 2s. 11d. expended.

A preferential capital of £50,000, bearing interest at 5 per cent., has been raised for the construction of the line from Navan to Kells.

The lines of this Company consist of the main line from Dublin to Drogheda, with branches to Howth, Navan, and Kells. For the amount due to the Dublin and Belfast Junction Company, for the construction of the Navan branch and interest thereon, a mortgage has been executed by this Company, for the payment of which, however, a further preferential capital of 7,400 shares of £25 each, at 4 per cent. per annum, has been created. This mortgage debt at present bears 5 per cent., thus effecting a saving of 1 per cent. to the company, on a capital of £183,000. The length of the main line is 32 miles, the Howth branch 3½ miles, the Navan branch 17½ miles, and from Navan to Kells, 9½ miles—total 62½ miles.

DUBLIN AND KINGSTOWN RAILWAY.—(Now leased to Dublin and Wicklow Railway Company.)

Share capital, under the powers of the original act, was created by the issue of 2,000 shares of £100 each, called in full and consolidated. An extension act authorized 4,000 new shares of £50 each, and 4,000 of £25 each. £17 10s. of the former and £8 15s. of the latter have been called. All of these shares rank rateably for dividend.

This line, in length 8 miles, was the first, and for many years the only railway constructed in Ireland, and was opened for public traffic on the 17th December, 1834. The cost, with appointments complete, has been upwards of £83,000 per mile. The gauge is 4 feet 8½ inches.

The Dublin and Wicklow Company receive £500 per annum for the conveyance of the mails over the Kingstown branch. The general business of the Kingstown branch, from its opening, may be ascertained from the following:—

DUBLIN AND WICKLOW RAILWAY.

Share capital paid up, £477,382. Loans on Debentures, £65,000. Loan per Public Works Commissioners, £100,000.

This Company was originally incorporated as the Waterford, Wexford, Wicklow, and Dublin Railway; several amendment acts have been since passed, that of the 24th July, 1851, having authorized the abandonment of the railway south of Wicklow, changed the name of the Company, and reduced the amount of the shares to £10 each, (all of which has been called). The Dublin and Bray Company is now amalgamated with the Dublin and Wicklow Company and a lease of the Dublin and Kingstown line has been effected, by which the Dublin and Kingstown line came under the management of the Dublin and Wicklow Company on the 1st of July, 1856. The line from Harcourt-road station, Dublin, to Bray, and the coast line from Dalkey to Bray, in all 16 miles, were opened for public traffic on 10th July, 1854. The entire line to Wicklow was opened for traffic on the 30th October, 1855; and the line between Kingstown and Dalkey, on 11th October, 1856.

DUNDALK AND ENNISKILLEN RAILWAY.

Thirty-six miles of this railway, from the junction with the Dublin and Belfast Junction Railway at Dundalk to Newbliss, are now open. The receipts on capital account, by the last half-yearly statement, were £359,001, and the expenditure, £256,463.

The traffic, between Dundalk and Castleblayney, 18 miles (exclusive of mails), and working expenses have been as follows:—

GREAT SOUTHERN AND WESTERN RAILWAY.

The subscription capital of this Company consists of 50,000 shares of £50 each, and 50,000 one-eighth shares of £6 5s. each, the latter bearing a preferential dividend of 6 per cent. The calls on each have been paid in full, and the capital converted into stock.

The Company has also issued 56,250 four per cent. preference shares, on which £14 per share has now been called up.

This Company has subscribed to the Irish South Eastern Company £90,000, and to the Killarney Junction Railway £60,000, both of which railways communicate with the Great Southern and Western. The length of line for which acts have been obtained is 248 miles and 62 chains; and there are now 203½ miles open for public traffic, consisting of the main line from Dublin to Cork, a branch to Carlow, and a branch from Portlannington to Tullamore.

A junction with the Waterford and Limerick Railway is formed at Ballykisteon, distant from Limerick about 22 miles; with the Irish South Eastern Railway at Carlow; and with the Killarney Junction Railway at Mallow. The arrangements between all these companies are the same as those adopted by the English railway companies, on the clearing system, for interchange of traffic and uniformity of working.

The following statement, from the published reports of the Company, shows the traffic receipts, working expenses, and dividends, since 1847:—

IRISH SOUTH EASTERN RAILWAY.

By an amendment act obtained on the 28th of July, 1849, the capital of the Company has been reduced to £264,000, in 22,000 shares of £12 each, called in full, with power to borrow £58,000.

The line extends from the Carlow Station of the Great Southern and Western Railway to Kilkenny, the length being 25½ miles. From Laristown to Kilkenny, 2 miles, this Company has the exclusive right to one line of the Waterford and Kilkenny Company's road, and likewise shares one-half of the joint station at Kilkenny, the rent paid for these privileges being £1,025 per annum. The locomotive power and carrying stock are provided, and the line is worked, by the Great Southern and Western Co. The traffic from the commencement has been as follows:—

KILLARNEY JUNCTION RAILWAY.

The length of railway is 41 miles, extending from the Mallow station on the Great Southern and Western Railway, to Killarney. Having cost (a little over) £5,000 per mile, this railway has the merit of having been constructed at a smaller outlay than any other line in the kingdom. By the amendment act of 24th July, 1851, the share capital was reduced to £225,000, and power was given to borrow £125,000, on the security of certain baronies of the counties of Cork and Kerry. £10 per share has been called. The Great Southern and Western Railway Company may subscribe £80,000, and may amalgamate with, lease, or purchase this railway. The statement of accounts last issued shows £249,702 to have been received on capital account, and £241,750 expended. The total number of passengers conveyed in the year ending 31st October, 1856, was 58,057, £ s., 7,752 first class, 9,151 second class, and 41,154 third class. The receipts from passengers were £9,901, from other sources £8,002, total £17,903.

LIMERICK AND ENNIS RAILWAY.

Incorporated by 9 and 10 Vic., 1846. Length of railway, 26½ miles. Capital, £150,000, in 6,000 shares of £25 each. Works in progress.

LIMERICK AND FOYNES RAILWAY.

Share capital £130,000, in 5,200 shares of £25 each. Length of railway 26 miles. About two-thirds of the line has been opened for traffic, from Limerick to Rathkeale. The next section, from Rathkeale to Askeaton, will be completed in the Spring, and it is expected that the whole line will be finished in July. The line at present opened is worked by the Waterford and Limerick Company.

LONDONDERRY AND COLERAINE RAILWAY.

The capital of this Company is comprised of 10,000 £25 shares, and 20,000 £12 10s. half shares (both called in full); total, £500,000; and loans £166,666, of which £165,500 has been received.

The length of the line is 36 miles, 19 of which—viz., from Londonderry to Newtownlimavady—were opened for goods traffic on the 1st October, 1852, and thence to Coleraine, on 18th July, 1853. The Capital Account to the 30th June, 1856, shows £552,121 to have been received, and £559,685 expended.

LONDONDERRY AND ENNISKILLEN RAILWAY.

The share capital is £455,000, with power to borrow to the extent of £150,000. A considerable proportion of the share capital is entitled to a preferential dividend of 5 per cent. per annum.

• Up to this period the Company allowed 4 per cent. interest on the share capital paid up.

The railway from Londonderry to Enniskillen (60 miles) is open throughout. The cost of construction was about £10,000 per mile—the ten miles from Newtownstewart to Omagh being double, the remainder a single line of rails. The traffic was from the commencement, 14th April, 1847, to

The Capital Account to the 30th June, 1856, shows £635,583 to have been received, and £650,857 expended.

MIDLAND GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.

The share capital authorized is £1,948,000; loans, £648,666; and length of railway 176½ miles. 20,000 shares of £50 each (called in full) were created under the first act, and 16,000 shares of £25 each (called in full) under the Mullingar to Athlone bill.

On the 28th July, 1849, an act of parliament was passed by which the Imperial Treasury was to advance £500,000, being the estimated amount necessary to construct the railway from Athlone to Galway, on these terms: interest at 3½ per cent. per annum for the first 10 years, after which the railway company are to add 1½ per cent. per annum, in discharge of the principal, making an annual payment of 5 per cent. on the sum advanced. Any deficiency in the interest of 3½ per cent. on the cost of the line from Athlone to Galway, which may not be realized by the working profits thereof, is to be made good by rates levied on the counties of Galway and Roscommon.

The Royal Canal is the property of this Company, which has now entered into an agreement with the Grand Canal Company for a 7 years' lease, and ultimate purchase or transfer of that undertaking.

The result of the business from the opening of the line has been as follows:—

NEWRY AND ENNISKILLEN RAILWAY.

The capital of this Company is classed thus:—Series A, 18,000 shares, of £20 each, series B, 18,000, of £15 each, and series C, 18,000, of £15 each; series A to be credited with all calls until the amount of £20 is paid up; the next sums to be paid on series B, until the amount of that series is called; and the remaining calls to be then levied on account of series C. £9 per share has been called.

The line between Newry and Gorah (3½ miles), where it joins the Dublin and Belfast Junction Railway, is completed, and was opened for traffic on the 1st March, 1854. The extension from Newry to the Quays, half a mile, is also complete. In pursuance of the resolution of an adjourned extraordinary meeting of the Proprietors, held on the 25th September last, the directors were fully authorized to extend their line direct from Newry to Armagh, and to form a junction with the Warrenpoint line at Newry. Arrangements are in progress for proceeding with bills before Parliament in the ensuing session, by which these purposes will be effected.

The receipts on Capital Account amounted to £130,511, and the expenditure to £133,025, on the 30th June, 1855.

NEWRY, WARRENPOINT, AND ROSTREVOR RAILWAY.

This Company is authorized to raise by shares £100,000; loans £23,383; and £10,000 in 6 per cent. preference shares of £2 each. All the old shares have been issued, and the full amount called; 2,312 of the new shares have been taken up.

The length of railway authorized by the act is 8 miles 46 chains. The portion from Newry to Warrenpoint (there is an intermediate station at Narrow Water Castle), in length 6 miles, was opened for passenger traffic on the 28th of May, 1849. It is a single line. The receipts have been:—

TRALEE AND KILLARNEY RAILWAY.

Act passed 15th August, 1853, authorizing share capital of £110,000, and loans £55,000. Length of proposed line, 22 miles.

ULSTER RAILWAY.

This railway runs from Belfast, in a south-westerly direction, to Portadown and Armagh. The Dublin and Belfast Junction Railway joins the line at Portadown. The Company may raise capital to the amount of £600,000, and borrow £200,000—together, £800,000. The share capital consists of 12,000 shares, of £50 each, £49 called. The total length of the line is 35½ miles, and the cost about £19,900 per mile.

The business of the undertaking may be seen from the following statement of traffic, &c.

WATERFORD AND KILKENNY RAILWAY.

The capital of this Company is comprised in 12,500 shares of £20 each, called in full, and 40,000 preference shares (6 per cent.) of £5 each, of which £4 per share has been called, with power to borrow £149,000. The Company has contracted a loan of £123,000 from the Public Works Loan Commissioners, of which £12,150 has been repaid.

The line extends from the junction with the Irish South-Eastern Railway at Kilkenny to the junction with the Waterford and Limerick Railway at Dunkitt, in length 28½ miles. The traffic has been from the commencement as follows:—

£516,543 has been received, and £513,382 expended on Capital Account, to the 29th September, 1854. No dividend has been paid by this Company.

WATERFORD AND LIMERICK RAILWAY.

The act of incorporation authorized share capital to the amount of £750,000, and loans, £250,000. The former was created by 15,000 shares, of £50 each, called in full. A loan of £120,000 has been obtained from the Public Works.

The length of railway authorized by the act of incorporation is 77 miles and 70 chains, from Limerick to Waterford, and is now open, the station at Waterford being worked jointly with the Waterford and Kilkenny Company. This railway crosses the Great Southern and Western about 8½ miles west of Tipperary. The two Companies thus form a continuous road between Dublin, Tipperary, Clonmel, Limerick, and Cork. The traffic, exclusive of mails, is exhibited in the following statement:

WATERFORD AND TRAMORE RAILWAY.

An act was obtained on 24th July, 1851, for the construction of this line, 7½ miles in length, and authorized a capital of £48,000, in 4,800 shares of £10 each, with power to borrow £16,000. This line was opened on the 5th of September, 1853, an interval of 22 weeks only having elapsed from cutting of the first sod to the completion of the railway, at a cost, moreover, of only £5,500 per mile. It being essentially a summer line, the directors were enabled to declare a dividend on the paid-up capital of the Company at the rate of £5 per cent. per annum for the half-year ended December, 1854, and £3 6s. 8d. per cent. per annum for the half-year ended June, 1855, and £5 per cent. per annum in December, 1855.

PUBLIC WORKS.

The Board of Public Works in Ireland has in charge the disposal and regulation of the loans and grants for public works, landed improvements, and drainage; also the expenditure for public buildings, roads and bridges, fisheries, piers and harbours, and certain lines of inland navigation.

Loans and Grants.—The total amount of loans placed in charge of the Board of Works, to 1st January, 1855, amounted to £10,447,838 18s. 1d., of this sum £4,638,037 11s. 10d. was remitted, leaving £5,809,801 6s. 3d., £896,098 2s. 2d. of which is unissued. Repayments of these loans to the amount of £2,676,109 17s. 10d. have been made to the Exchequer.

Landed Property Improvement.—The beneficial results, in an agricultural view, which have followed the effective drainage works executed through the medium of the Land Improvement Acts, have been fully described in previous Reports. It is unnecessary again to enter upon the subject; but the Commissioners observe that, as a whole, the result has been very successful, the only impediment now experienced by landed proprietors in carrying out their works as rapidly and extensively as might be desired, being the difficulty of procuring a sufficient number of labourers at the proper season.

Up to the 31st of December, 1855, the number of loans sanctioned was 3,149, amounting to £2,319,630. A considerable number of loans, however, which had been sanctioned since 1847, when the first loans were made, have been relinquished or cancelled by the Board, the reduction, in consequence of which amount to £370,365; a small sum, therefore, still remains unappropriated out of the fund of £2,000,000, voted by Parliament for the Land Improvement service.

The gross amount issued on loans from the commencement up to the 31st of December, 1854, is £1,401,334, of which £46,479 was issued during the year 1854. According to the reports of the Board's inspectors, it appears that the sum of £1,075,550 has been expended in thorough-draining, subsoiling, making farm roads, &c., up to the 31st of December, 1854; and the sum of £279,305, being the amount of instalments last issued to the several proprietors, may be said to be in progress of expenditure. The number of loans which have been completed, and for which final certificates have been issued, is 1,652, amounting to the sum of £698,493; and the number of loans, the works of which are still in progress of execution, is 1,425, amounting to the sum of £730,737. 153 loans, amounting to £51,700, have been sanctioned to proprietors for the erection of farm buildings, of which 83 cases, amounting to the sum of £28,900, have been completed, and on the remainder considerable progress has been made.

As required by the provisions of the Acts, the loans are issued by instalments, which usually amount to one-fifth of the loan; but, in dealing with those exceeding £2,500, the amount of an instalment is limited to £500. In every case the whole of the works are executed by the proprietors who obtain the loans—the Board of Works being strictly administrative; and, to insure that the inheritor or remainder-man shall derive full value for the sums expended, strict and searching investigations are made by Drainage and Land Improvement Inspectors, appointed by the Board, in regard to the expenditure of the first and every subsequent instalment of the loan which may have been issued; and in the event of any failure of the works, arising from imperfection in their execution, or deviation from the plans and specifications agreed upon, the issue of a further instalment is declined until the imperfection has been corrected, and the whole of the works are brought into a satisfactory and efficient state.

Progress of the Drainage Works under the Land Improvement Acts.—The total area that has been thoroughly drained, up to the 31st December, 1855, amounts to 165,360 acres, which has been effected at an average cost of £4 16s. per acre, of which 6,700 acres have been drained during the year 1855, and a considerable portion of the land drained has been subsoiled.

Distribution of the Fund.—The following Abstract shows the proportion of the total amount of the Land Improvement Fund of £2,000,000, which has been apportioned to the different counties and districts in Ireland, arranged in four Districts, viz., NORTHERN—including Antrim, Londonderry, Donegal, Fermanagh, Tyrone, Armagh, and Down—7 counties; MIDLAND and EASTERN—Cavan, Monaghan, Longford, Louth, Meath, Westmeath, Dublin, Kildare, King's, Queen's, Wicklow, Carlow, Kilkenny, and Wexford—14 counties; WESTERN—Sligo, Leitrim, Mayo, Roscommon, Galway, and Clare—6 counties; and SOUTHERN—Limerick, Tipperary, Waterford, Cork, and Kerry—5 counties.

Proceedings under the Drainage Acts.—Up to the end of 1855 about 272,000 acres of land have been drained and relieved from liability to injury by floods. The lands so relieved are, generally speaking, some of the richest alluvial soils in the country, heretofore flooded frequently from three to six months in the year, yielding in most instances precarious crops, and in some cases nearly valueless.

The following is an abstract of the 94 awards made final up to the end of 1855, and all the repayments thereon up to December 31, 1855:—

Stat. Acres.	Area of Flooded or Injured Lands drained.	Increase in the Annual Letting Value of these Lands.	Half-yearly Instalment to repay Cost.	Total.

The whole expenditure charged against undertakings commenced under the Arterial Drainage Acts, deducting the sums received in repayments for works chargeable to counties, amounted at the end of 1855 to £2,064,859. Of this expenditure £612,263 may be considered to have been charged on the completed districts; £182,983 to have been remitted; and £1,452,596 to be chargeable to districts not yet closed. Of the amount mentioned as charged on the completed districts, £152,261 has been already repaid.

Fisheries.—Bounties to encourage the fisheries, granted in 1764, and continued for several years, failed to place them on a productive footing. The experiment was repeated in 1819, when commissioners were appointed, with powers to grant bounties to persons building fishing boats of a certain tonnage, and for the curing of herring and some other kinds of fish. An annual sum of £5,000 was placed at their disposal, the application of which was afterwards limited to the building of piers and the repairing of boats; a large portion of the grant was also employed as a loan fund, to enable the poorer fishermen to procure the necessary gear on advantageous terms. The commission was revoked in 1830, and the unapplied residue of the grants vested, in the first instance, in the Board of Inland Navigation, and subsequently in that of Public Works, to whom sums of £4,500, £3,500, £2,500, £1,500, and £1,000, were granted during the five ensuing years, to be applied to the completion of piers erected before 1830, and for defraying the expenses incurred in the collection of the outstanding loans of the former commission. No further measures were adopted respecting them until 1842, when the Board of Public Works was appointed Commissioners for their improvement and regulation. The country is portioned out into 40 east fishery districts, and 17 salmon and inland fishery districts. The amount received for licences under the Fishery Act was, in 1851, £3,543; in 1852, £3,574; in 1853, £3,543; in 1854, £3,222; in 1855, £4,113.

Sea Fisheries.—The following table shows the number of vessels and hands engaged in the sea fisheries in the undermentioned years:—

In consequence of the continuous emigration from the seaport towns and coast districts, and the great demand for seamen, the number of men and boats engaged in the fisheries continues on the decrease; but the increasing demand for fish, and consequent rise in prices, has proved a sufficient inducement for exertion, and produced much improvement in the condition of the boats and men actually employed. The great lines of railway have afforded quick transit to good markets; but a more fostering spirit than that experienced from the Irish Railway Companies is thought requisite to develop the trade in fish.

Herring Fishery.—The herring fishery is prosecuted chiefly on the east coast of Ireland by a fleet of between 200 and 300 vessels from Cornwall, which for several weeks continue profitably employed in the capture of fish for the Dublin and Liverpool markets, while the owners of the fishing vessels of Dublin and its adjacent fishing ports are the purchasers and carriers to other places of the portion not required for the home demand. The Irish markets are still extensively supplied with cured fish from Scotland and the Isle of Man. The number of barrels of herrings imported into Ireland in 1853 was 95,339; in 1854, 121,884; and in 1855, 97,377.

Salmon and Inland Fisheries.—There are about 120 salmon rivers in Ireland. At the chief salmon fisheries, since 1842, there has been a very considerable diminution in the take of salmon, and the produce of the season of 1850 was the least upon record. The seasons of 1851, 1852, and 1853, have shown a progressive improvement of the fishery, whilst with an increased supply, high prices have been maintained, in consequence of the improved means of communication from remote districts to the best markets.

The question of the artificial production of fish has engaged much of the attention of the Inspecting Commissioners, but it yet remains to be proved to what extent the commercial value of the salmon fisheries may be increased by such means.

AGRICULTURE.

Ireland was almost exclusively a pasturing country until the middle of the last century. That the soil of Ireland is, however, eminently fitted for tillage, appears from the evidence of every intelligent person qualified to give a sound opinion, who has visited the country. ARTHUR YOUNG, who travelled through it in 1776-8, says of Limerick and Tipperary,—"It is the richest soil I ever saw." WAKEFIELD, in his "Statistical Account of Ireland," says,—"Ireland may be considered as affording land of excellent quality: some places exhibit the richest loam I ever saw turned up by a plough." And M'CULLOCH, in his valuable work on the "Statistics of the British Empire," confirms these statements:—"The luxuriance of the pastures," he writes, "and the heavy crops of oats that are everywhere raised, even with the most wretched cultivation, attest its extraordinary fertility." Natural manures abound in most districts. The greatest portion of the soil lies on a substratum of limestone; marl is raised in many places, as is gypsum or sulphate of lime; coralline sand and sea-weed are collected along the shores. The quantity of land, and its divisions, are, according to the Census returns of 1841 and 1851—

The tenure of landed property varies considerably. Formerly the custom prevailed of granting leases either in perpetuity, for 999 years, or for lives renewable for ever, with or without renewal fine. Hence some of the owners of very large estates receive a very small share of the actual profits. The leases commonly granted at present are for sixty-one, thirty-one, or twenty-one years, with very frequently a life or lives. Landlords neither erect nor repair the farm steads, and seldom expend money on permanent improvements, the maintaining and improving of the farm being thrown wholly on the tenant. The system of middlemen, who rent land from the proprietor, and re-let it to under-tenants, prevails very much. In many instances there are several middlemen between the head landlord and the occupying tenant, which latter, according to the law of real property in this country, thus becomes answerable for the payment of his own rent to his immediate landlord, and for that of all the rents of every intermediate holder under the original proprietor. Estates are of every extent, from a very small quantity to more than 50,000 acres; and every holder who has under-tenants, assumes the grade and bearing of a gentleman. Hence the class of respectable yeomen is scarcely known. Grazing farms are large; the arable in general small, particularly in Ulster, in which province much of the land in several counties, particularly in those where the domestic manufacture of linen prevailed, is parcelled out into very minute subdivisions. The practice of taking into cultivation large tracts of mountain bog or other land hitherto unreclaimed, is now very prevalent. The cottier system, by which the occupying tenant receives a patch of land, in part or whole payment of wages, and that of rundale, in which a large tract is held by a number of individuals in common, are still kept up.

Few of even the moderate sized farms are entirely under tillage, and the extensive farms, especially in the western and some of the midland counties, are devoted exclusively to pasture, or have a small portion of arable attached to a large share of permanent pasture. The farm buildings are therefore suited to these circumstances; and present a marked contrast with English and Scotch steadings erected for farms of similar extent and fertility.

Returns of Agricultural Produce.—In 1847 an inquiry was instituted by the Irish government as to the annual amount of the agricultural produce of Ireland, which has been since carried on from year to year. The information, collected by the Constabulary in the first instance, according to townlands, whose number is about 60,760, averaging 300 acres each, is afterwards consolidated into poor law unions, and thus published in the returns presented annually by command of Her Majesty to both houses of parliament.

The returns are made into two divisions, crops and stock. The inquiry into these two points necessarily involved one into the number and extent of farms on which each of the two kinds of produce is raised.

The following table shows the changes which have taken place in the several classes of holdings:—

Since 1849 there has been a steady decrease in the relative number of holdings above 1 and not exceeding 5 acres in size, and also in those above 5 and not exceeding 15 acres; those above 15 and under 30 acres varied very little in proportion during the years specified, but holdings above 30 acres increased from 24.1 per cent. in 1849 to 26.3 per cent. in 1850.

The following table shows the number of holdings in each Province, for the years 1854 and 1855.

Very little variation appears to have taken place in the classes above 15 and not exceeding 500 acres; the greatest number of holdings in any of the classes is in that which embraces farms above 5 and not exceeding 15 acres; next greatest number includes farms above 15 and not exceeding 30 acres; then those of 5 acres and under, after which, commencing with farms above 30 and under 50, the number of holdings decreases as the size of the farm increases.

The number of holdings exceeding 1 acre, between 1854 and 1855, is shown in the following table, which gives a net increase in the holdings of 906 in the latter year:—

The counties in which an increase in the number of cottiers would appear to have taken place were Dublin, Galway, Kerry, Kildare, Leitrim, Louth, Mayo, and Sligo; in the remaining counties a decrease is apparent, resulting in a net decrease of 1,523 holdings of this class; it is to be borne in mind, however, in reference to holdings under 1 acre in extent, that as persons in villages having small gardens behind their houses are included in this class; houses in towns, unoccupied during one year and tenanted the next, will make the number returned under this class to fluctuate from time to time.

The following table shows the number of holdings in each class, and how the land is divided amongst the several classes; more than one-half of the entire area of the country is in the possession of farmers, whose holdings vary from 15 to 200 acres in size, and an almost equal extent of land under tillage and grass is held by each of the three classes whose farms are from "15 to 30 acres," "30 to 50 acres," and "50 to 100 acres," in extent; and that of the land held by persons whose farms exceed 200 acres, amounting in the whole to 5,029,115 acres, 2,372,569 acres, or nearly one-half, is "Bog or Waste." 471,909 only being under tillage, and 2,050,521 under grass. The average extent of land held by each class in 1855 is also shown.

Flax.—The climate and soil of Ireland are admirably adapted to the growth of flax, and its culture and manufacture into clothing were among the earliest industrial occupations of the native Irish, but owing to various causes its culture is only now beginning to attract its due share of attention. Since the dissolution of the Linen Board in 1828, no effort was made to improve the culture of flax, until the establishment, in 1841, of the "Society for the Promotion and Improvement of the (growth of Flax in Ireland." The growth has followed the manufacture, and become concentrated in Ulster, since the employment of machinery in spinning yarn. In 1809, the number of acres under cultivation in Ulster was 62,441; in the other provinces, 14,308; but in 1841 the number of acres had increased in Ulster to 81,131, and diminished in the other provinces to 2,314.

The following table gives the breadth of flax cultivated in each province since 1850 :—

Live Stock.—The Census Commissioners of 1841 having ascertained the quantity of land in every farm in Ireland, and the number of horses and mules, asses, cattle, sheep, pigs, and poultry, on each holding, in that year—the returns published in their report affords a valuable basis for comparison. The Commissioners assumed an average rate per head for each description, viz.: horses and mules were valued at £8 each; asses at £1; horned cattle at £6 10s.; sheep at £1 2s.; pigs at £1 5s.; poultry at 6d. By this means they arrived at an approximation to the value of the live stock in Ireland in 1841. Horses and mules, cattle, sheep, and pigs, should now be estimated at higher prices, but as any alteration in the rates would disturb the comparison with previous years, the prices of 1841 have been adopted. The following table gives the

In 1841 the average value of stock per holding was as follows:—on holdings above 1 and not exceeding 5 acres, £9 17s. 6d.; on holdings above 5 and not exceeding 15 acres, £22 11s. 7d.; on holdings above 15 and not exceeding 30 acres, £46 8s. 7d.; and on all holdings "above 30 acres," £142 16s. 1d.

The total value of stock in Ireland, in 1841, at the assumed rates, was £19,399,843; in 1855, it was £33,679,731, at the same rates; being an increase of £14,279,888 in 14 years.

MANUFACTURES.

The woollen manufacture, which was nearly extinguished at the Revolution, revived for some time after, but is now confined to Dublin, Cork, King's County, Waterford, Kilkenny, and the Queen's County: the linen, which was substituted for the woollen, after flourishing for many years chiefly in Ulster, also declined, but is now reviving in consequence of the application of machinery to the spinning of yarn, and of the introduction of the power-loom in weaving: the cotton, introduced in 1777, for some time competed with the linen, but has also declined: the silk, since its introduction by French emigrants in the beginning of the last century, has been confined to Dublin; its chief branch is tabinets or Irish poplins, which still flourishes.

The number of spindles in operation for spinning flax in Ireland, is now 567,980, employing 28,753 hands; 200,000 persons are altogether employed in connexion with the trade, and the amount invested in buildings, machinery, and the requisite floating capital, £3,000,000.

The substitution of machinery in place of hand-spinning has been the salvation of the Irish linen trade. The first machinery for spinning flax was erected in Great Britain in 1793. The first flax-spinning machinery erected in Ireland was at Cork, in 1805. About 1825, English and Scotch yarns were first imported into Ireland, and undersold the hand-spun article. The use of machinery gradually increased, and the linen manufacture soon became extinguished in the south and west, and concentrated in the north. In 1821, when George IV. visited Ireland, the yarns were all made by hand. With one or two trifling exceptions, not a spinning factory was to be seen. In 1849, more than 70 of these busy hives studded the land. In 1819, with the existence of bounties on the export of linens, and heavy duties on the admission of foreign flax and linen fabrics, only 40 millions of yarns were exported from Ireland. In 1849, these exports had increased to 75 millions, although all the bounties and protective duties had been withdrawn. A trade with the Continent has existed of late years, in the exportation of linen yarns, replacing, to a certain extent, the export of woven linens. The entire export from Ireland to Great Britain and all foreign countries reaches about 106,000,000 yards, value, £4,400,000. The following table shows a comparison of the production and value of the yarns made, and amount of wages paid, in an interval of ten years:—

		Bundles of Yarn.	Value.	Wages Paid.
1840, ...		5,000,000	£1,500,000	£208,000
1850, ...		7,400,000	1,942,500	317,000

EXPORTS OF LINEN YARN FOR THE YEARS 1853 AND 1854.
From the United Kingdom.			From Belfast.
1853, ...	22,493,586lb.		1853, ...	7,890,400lb.
1854, ...	17,696,867lb.		1854, ...	7,714,560lb.
Decrease, ...	5,196,719lb.		Decrease, ...	175,810lb.
	Or 23 per cent. decrease.			Or only 2 per cent. decrease.

Belfast, therefore, supplied in 1854, nearly one-half of the entire quantity of linen yarn exported from the United Kingdom, a gratifying proof of the important position that neighbourhood has attained as a manufacturing district. The entire value of the Irish Flax and Linen trade may thus be estimated:—

IMPORTED INTO IRELAND, 1854.				EXPORTED FROM IRELAND, 1854.
6,690 tons foreign flax, at £70, ...			£468,300	7,984 tons flax, at £54, ...			£410,976

Sewed Muslins.—A great source of employment for females has of late years sprung up in the North of Ireland, in the working of patterns on muslin with the needle. Belfast is the centre of this manufacture, which employs about 300,000 persons, chiefly females, scattered through all the counties of Ulster and some localities of the other provinces. About 40 firms are engaged in the trade, some being Irish houses and others agents for Scotch firms, and the gross value of the manufactured goods amounts to about £1,400,000.

* The figures above, under Army, Ordnance, &c., only show the amount issued out of the Exchequer in Ireland for these Services, and not the whole expense under those heads, the larger portion of which was defrayed from the English Exchequer, but the amount cannot be stated; not can any statement be given of the Naval Expenditure of Ireland.

The repayment of a portion of these advances, amounting to £4,397,588, was remitted by the Acts 10 & 11 Vic., c. 87, and 16 & 17 V., c. 78. See Finance Accounts, No. 123 of 1854, page 78.

NOTE.—This Account, under the head of Expenditure, shows only the payments made from the Exchequer of Ireland, and not the whole expenditure by the United Kingdom on account of Ireland. On the other hand, the receipts from the Crown Lands in Ireland are brought into the general account of the Commissioners of Woods, &c., and do not appear as part of the income of Ireland. The amount received from rents and other sources of Land Revenue in Ireland in 1855 was £20,185 13s. 1d.
